

The ZetaTalk Newsletter

Issue 296, Sunday June 3, 2012

Weekly news and views from around the world and beyond.

New ZetaTalk

Earth Changes

Announcements

Signs of the Times

Nemesis Revived

In the early 1980's the search was on for what astronomers called Nemesis, a gravity draw beyond the solar system out in the direction of the constellation Orion. This gravity draw had been noted for centuries to be perturbing the outer planets. This search was reported in Astronomy magazine, the New York Times, Newsweek, and US News World Report. The search resulted in a front page article on the Washington Post on December 31, 1983, announcing a discovery. Planet X, aka Nibiru, had been sighted, inbound, by a US government infrared balloon lofted above the atmosphere.

Astronomy: Search for the Tenth Planet
Dec 1981

The pull exerted by its gravity would account for a wobble in Uranus' orbit that was first detected in 1821. Astronomers at the U.S. Naval Observatory (USNO) are using a powerful computer to identify the best target zones, and a telescopic search will follow soon after. Van Flandern thinks the tenth planet may have between two and five Earth masses and lie 50 to 100 astronomical units from the Sun.

New York Times
June 19, 1982

Scientists at the space agency's Ames Research Center said the two spacecraft, Pioneer 10 and 11, which are already farther into space than any other man-made object, might add to knowledge of a mysterious object believed to be beyond the solar system's outermost known planets.

Newsweek: Does the Sun Have a Dark Companion?
June 28 1982

When scientists noticed that Uranus wasn't following its predicted orbit for example, they didn't question their theories. Instead they blamed the anomalies on an as yet unseen planet and, sure enough, Neptune was discovered in 1846. Now astronomers are using the same strategy to explain quirks in the orbits of Uranus and Neptune.

Washington Post: Mystery Heavenly Body Discovered
31-Dec-1983

<http://www.zetatalc3.com/theword/tword26c.htm>

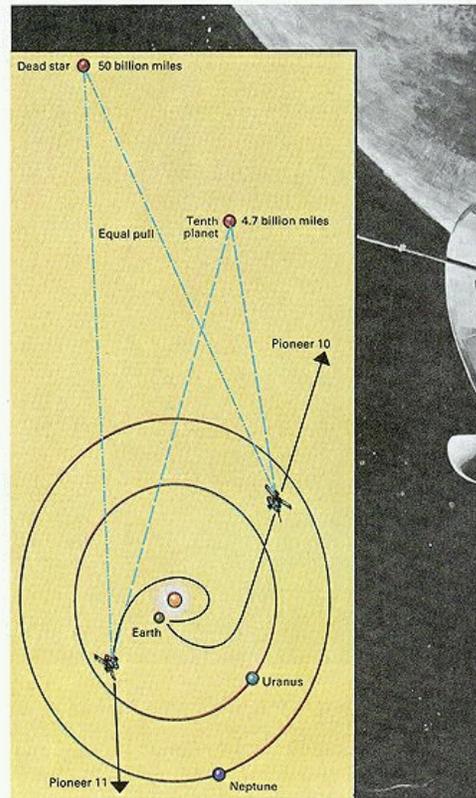

A heavenly body possibly as large as the giant planet Jupiter and possibly so close to Earth that it would be part of this solar system has been found in the direction of the constellation Orion by an orbiting telescope aboard the U.S. infrared astronomical satellite. So mysterious is the object that astronomers do not know if it is a planet, a giant comet, a nearby "protostar" that never got hot enough to become a star, a distant galaxy so young that it is still in the process of forming its first stars or a galaxy so shrouded in dust that none of the light cast by its stars ever gets through. So close in fact that it would be the nearest heavenly body to Earth beyond the outermost planet Pluto. The mystery body was seen twice by the infrared satellite as it scanned the northern sky.

US News World Report: Planet X - Is It Really Out There?
Sept 10, 1984

Last year, the infrared astronomical satellite (IRAS), circling in a polar orbit 560 miles from the Earth, detected heat from an object about 50 billion miles away that is now the subject of intense speculation.

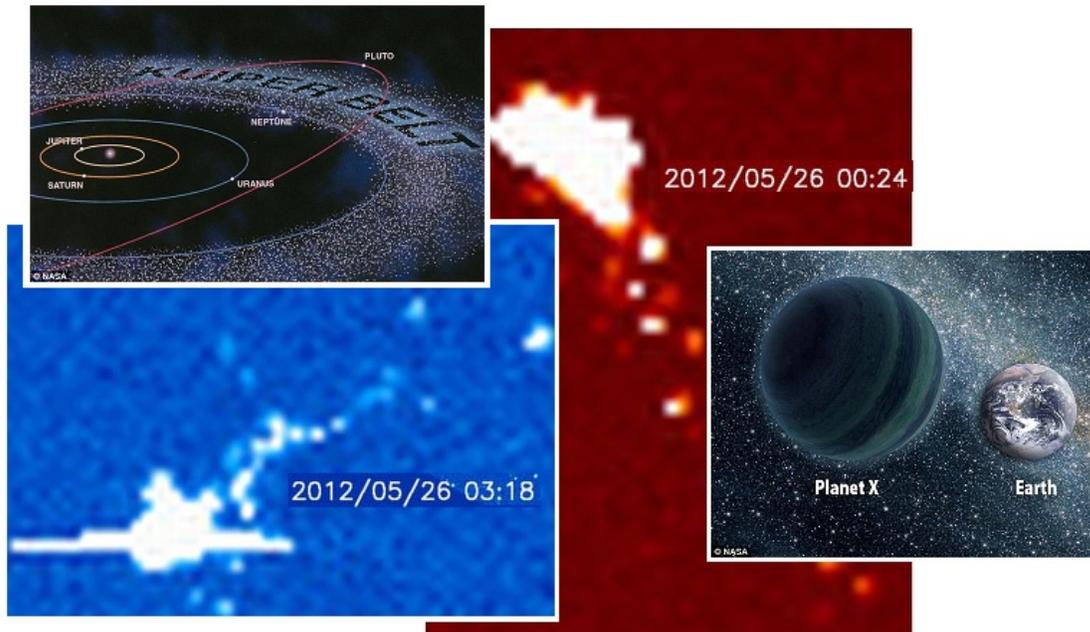

At that time, in the early 1980's there was some openness about the search for Nemesis, a diagram that appeared in the 1987 New Science and Invention Encyclopedia published by H.S. Stuttman, Westport, Connecticut, USA even showing the path of the Pioneer 10 and 11 probes in relationship to the mystery body they were sent to probe.

2488 | SPACE PROBE

Above: Pioneer 10 became the first craft to pass into interstellar space in 1983. The diagram (inset) shows the path of the two Pioneer probes.

Then the cover-up over Planet X dropped like a cloak of darkness. It never happened! There were no perturbations, just mathematical errors! Now in May, 2012 Nemesis is being revived! Brought back from the dead! But notice they do not mention the search in the early 1980's and the discovery of Planet X in 1983! And they certainly do not mention the body showing up regularly on SOHO and Stereo images, and being photographed by people all over the world using the red filter inserts from old floppy discs, or what showed up during the last lunar eclipse on May 20-21, 2012. Per the Zetas, the establishment is formulating an explanation for the day when (horrors!) the populace notices Planet X and its many Moon Swirls in the sky above them, and it is not yet time for the elite to dash to their bunkers or declare martial law! What to do! Quick, pretend it just arrived! Is that why the 1980's Nemesis search is being omitted, so the establishment is not constrained by direction? Remember, for centuries, the outer planets were perturbed toward Orion, and this is where it came from in 2003. Accept no substitutes!

Is 'Planet X 2.0' Lurking Beyond Pluto's Orbit?

May 23, 2012

<http://news.discovery.com/space/planex-x-20-gravitational-perturbations>

Before the doomsayers hijacked "Planet X" and used it as a phantom (a.k.a. "Nibiru") to scare people into believing the 2012 doomsday hype, the hunt for Planet X was an exciting astronomical quest to find a hypothetical world in the outermost reaches of the solar system in the early 20th century. Although the presence of a massive planet may explain the extreme orbits, there is little else that suggests Planet X 2.0 really is out there. But the method of seeking out other worlds while looking for their gravitational influence on the orbits of other celestial bodies has been done before, with historic success.

Astronomer Insists there is a Planet X Four Times the Size of Earth Lurking at the Edge of our Solar System

May 23, 2012

<http://www.dailymail.co.uk/sciencetech/article-2148631/The-hunt-Planet-X-Noted-astronomer>

The evidence for 'Planet X' - the mysterious hypothesised planet on the edge of our solar system - has taken a new turn thanks to the mathematics of a noted astronomer. An astronomer at the National Observatory of Brazil in Rio de Janeiro, says the irregular orbits of small icy bodies beyond Neptune imply that a planet four times the size of Earth is swirling around our sun in the fringes of the solar system.

ZetaTalk Explanation 6/2/2012: NASA's history of discovery on wandering rogue planets that seem to travel through space independent of a central Sun is not a pretty one. Similar to the Flat Earth theory, they cling to their theories righteously, angrily attacking the facts and any messenger bringing them those facts as though their egos were a holy place and the truth were the enemy. When ZetaTalk presented concepts that explained the behavior of such rogue or traveling planets, their failure to follow a circular orbit around a sun and the speed at which they can move through space, Nancy and ourselves were ridiculed for not understanding "the laws" of nature as purported by their God Newton.

Little by little, inch by inch, they have admitted our facts, always in the context of a human discovery, such is their arrogance. If one revisits the history, one sees that only since the start of the ZetaTalk saga have humans proposed theories and pursued discovery that remarkably parallel our explanations. Now wandering planets, previously denied entirely as even possible, are readily admitted. Previously NASA's pet theory of "escape velocity" was asserted as a law, where now traveling planets that can escape the gravity draw of a sun, are admitted.

Since NASA et al were so very busy defending their egos and precious theories, why have we begun to see articles in print wherein astronomers have discovered wandering planets? Why, after the search in the 1980's for what was called "nemesis", a gravity body in the direction of the constellation of Orion that was causing perturbations in the outer planets, is this theory now being reactivated? When Planet X was discovered there in 1983, all such talk of a gravity force there was forbidden, as JPL and NASA did indeed find Planet X with their infrared cameras. Is there some benefit to be gained by admitting that traveling planets exist, and encouraging the public to think that such a planet may exist just on the outskirts of the solar system?

When it became obvious that Planet X was zooming into the solar system, at the speed we had predicted, the establishment realized they would likely have to invent an excuse in case the passage was not swift. What if a body were visible, for months or years, so the public became restless and rebellious? While frantically ridiculing Nancy and ourselves, they had their cover-up minions purport that Planet X was "out past Jupiter", and spread rumors of spots that Google Sky would not display. All the while, of course, Planet X and its Moon Swirls were showing up on SOHO and Stereo images, seen naked eye, and recently made a nice appearance during the May 20-21 lunar eclipse. Should Planet X itself suddenly become visible to all, they will announce that the suspected nemesis body at the fringes of the solar system moved to explain its rapid arrival!

Drone Swarms

Drones are increasingly being used by the US and Israeli military, which is increasingly worrying civil rights groups. Drones have historically been used to gather intel, an overhead camera in effect, but now are increasingly being used as a substitute for armed war planes or boots on the ground. Highly mobile remotely controlled drones are being armed and being authorized by the FAA to fly over cities.

Unmanned Aerial Vehicle

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Unmanned_aerial_vehicle

Their largest use is within military applications. UAVs are also used in a small but growing number of civil applications, such as firefighting or nonmilitary security work, such as surveillance of pipelines. UAVs are often preferred for missions that are too "dull, dirty, or dangerous" for manned aircraft. The earliest attempt at a powered unmanned aerial vehicle was A. M. Low's "Aerial Target" of 1916. Nikola Tesla described a fleet of unmanned aerial combat vehicles in 1915.

Groups Concerned Over Arming Of Domestic Drones

May 23, 2012

<http://washington.cbslocal.com/2012/05/23/groups-concerned-over-arming-of-domestic-drones/>

Drones have been used overseas to target and kill high-level terror leaders and are also being used along the U.S.-Mexico border in the battle against illegal immigration. But now, these drones are starting to be used domestically at an increasing rate.

Drones 'Certainly' Coming to Skies over Beltway

April 30, 2012

<http://wtop.com/?nid=120&sid=2846813>

The use of drones in the D.C. area became public information last week, after the Federal Aviation Administration released a list of agencies currently or previously permitted to use the unmanned aerial vehicles.

It included many federal departments, such as Agriculture, Homeland Security and Energy as well as local organizations such as Virginia Commonwealth University and Virginia Tech.

Per the Zetas, drones are likely to be used by the elite to control the masses going into and after the Pole Shift, but surprises wait.

ZetaTalk Prediction 5/5/2012: The US government is fast putting drones into operation over their cities. The reason is obvious – they know what is coming. How drones are used in the future is up to the hands that manage them, in the hands of man, and thus it is difficult to predict the outcome. It is hard to imagine drones being used as a peaceful assist to citizen survival. Would the drones track ahead of a group of migrants, looking for broken bridges or gangs laying in wait in the bushes? Or would drones be used to guard the perimeter of a large survival camp, so that woman and children could tend flocks and herds and garden in the fields with safety? There is, of course, this possibility, but the more likely possibility is that wealthy enclaves would be protected in this manner, and drones used to ensure that a slave labor force remain in the fields and not manage to escape.

We have predicted that leading into and after the Pole Shift that the grid will be down, communications relying upon satellites nil and those relying upon towers and land lines devastated. Roads, landing strips, and bridges will be broken and unusable. The ambitions of some in the US military to create personal fiefdoms for themselves, or in combination with some wealthy enclaves to live as kings in the Aftertime, would of course be greatly enhanced by drones. This fact is not lost on them. But a drone is merely a mechanical device, dependent upon electronics and communications from a human handler. Oh, so very easy for benign aliens to scuttle.

An example of how easily drones can be tampered with, by benign aliens, is this example of a persistent computer virus afflicting US military drone fleets used in Afghanistan. The virus would be eradicated, and then reappear! Per the Zetas, this was a warning.

Exclusive: Computer Virus Hits U.S. Drone Fleet
October 11, 2011

<http://www.wired.com/dangerroom/2011/10/virus-hits-drone-fleet/>

A computer virus has infected the cockpits of America's Predator and Reaper drones, logging pilots' every keystroke as they remotely fly missions over Afghanistan and other warzones. The virus, first detected nearly two weeks ago by the military's Host-Based Security System, has not prevented pilots at Creech Air Force Base in Nevada from flying their missions overseas. Nor have there been any confirmed incidents of classified information being lost or sent to an outside source. But the virus has resisted multiple efforts to remove it from Creech's computers, network security specialists say. And the infection underscores the ongoing security risks in what has become the U.S. military's most important weapons system.

ZetaTalk Explanation 10/22/2011: As is well known, at least among contactees, is our many means of maneuvering in human society. Screen memories, temporary future travel to affect a future scene that will click in when the time arrives, and temporarily freezing all in a room so a maneuver can occur are some means we have explained. The virus is reinstated after removal, deliberately. The drone virus is a warning of potential future interference if the drones are used by the establishment to enforce slavery of survivors, or track migration of survivors after the pole shift.

Beyond 2012

The much touted end of the Mayan Calendar – December 21, 2012 – was promoted by the establishment because at the time the date was far in the future. “Not to worry”, was their message to the working men and women of the Earth, “there’s plenty of time”! Just go to your jobs and keep paying your taxes. But as the year arrived, the establishment became nervous. After all the hype, how to keep the working folk focused on their jobs? Might they panic? The solution was to begin murmuring that December 21, 2012 was not, after all, any kind of firm date! Just as the Zetas warned they would do.

ZetaTalk Comment 11/26/2011: 2012 was used as a magnet, so that discussions about the many prophecies, the End Time prophecies, could be pointed into the future. When the 2012 craze first began, years ago, this was far into the future and thus considered safe by the establishment, who want first and foremost for their slave classes to tend to their jobs and not rush away from coastal cities. Where ZetaTalk was saying mankind should prepare now, move to their safe locations now, the establishment wanted the common man to think they had plenty of time to prepare. What will they do now that 2012 is upon them, and we are only at the start of the 7 of 10 scenarios? They will fog the issues, finding some reason to point into the future.

Now that message is being pushed. Suddenly, information from the Mayans that was there all along has become available, just now receiving press coverage.

Maya Calendar Workshop Documents Time Beyond 2011

May 10, 2012

<http://cosmiclog.msnbc.msn.com/news/2012/05/10/11639788-maya-calendar-workshop>

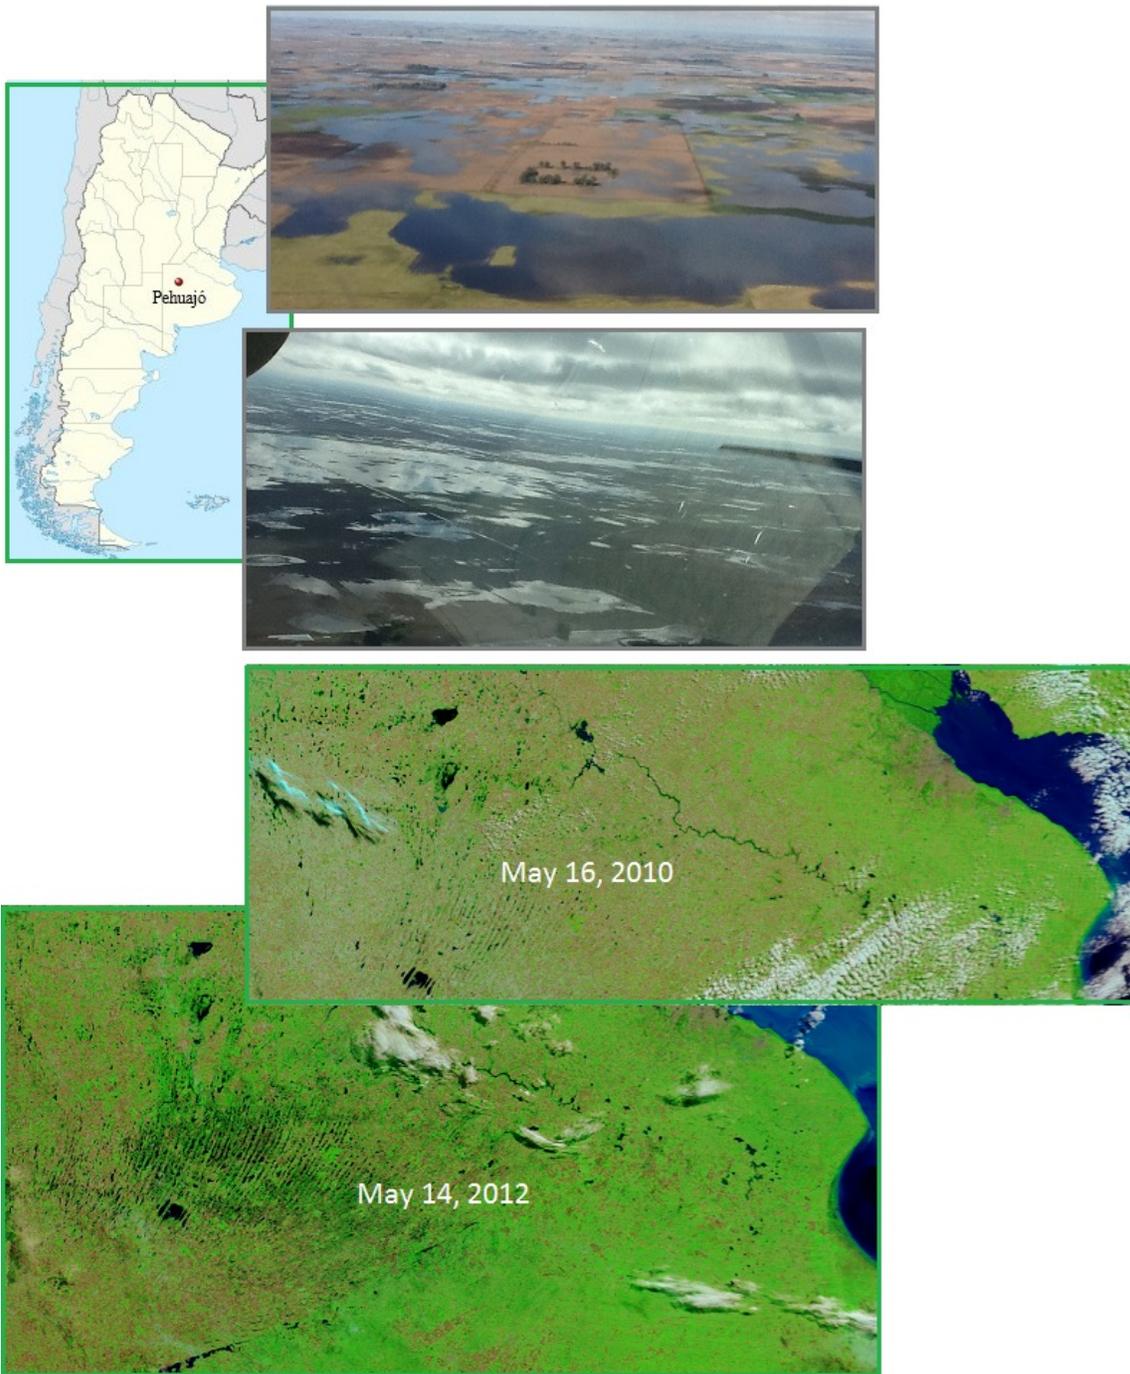

Archaeologists have found a stunning array of 1,200-year-old Maya paintings in a room that appears to have been a workshop for calendar scribes and priests, with numerical markings on the wall that denote intervals of time well beyond the controversial cycle that runs out this December. For years, prophets of doom have been saying that we're in for an apocalypse on Dec. 21, 2012, because that marks the end of the Maya "Long Count" calendar, which was based on a cycle of 13 intervals known as "baktuns," each lasting 144,000 days. But the researchers behind the latest find, detailed in the journal Science and an upcoming issue of National Geographic, say the writing on the wall runs counter to that bogus belief. Archaeologists have been trying to get out the word that the end of the Maya culture's 13-baktun "Long Count" calendar didn't signify the end of the world, but merely a turnover to the next cycle in a potentially infinite series.

Argentina Bend

As the 7 of 10 S American roll progresses, the top of S America is pulled westward over the Cocos Plate while the spine of the Andes down to the latitude of Buenos Aires is held back by the Nazca Plate. This causes S America below Buenos Aires to bend, stretching the east coast so the land drops.

ZetaTalk Prediction 5/4/2011: Argentina, at Buenos Aires, will experience stretching as the top part of S America is pulled to the west while the tip of S America is nailed firmly at the Antarctic Plate. The bay at Buenos Aires will rip open.

This has been recently been shown by dramatic flooding just to the southwest of Buenos Aires. The seaway at Buenos Aires is expected to rip open during the Pole Shift, but in the mean time, the stretch from the 7 of 10 bending is pulling the lands in nearby Pehuajó down, as detailed in a Pole Shift nize blog. Satellite images show that Pehuajó is flooded, despite a lack of rain and being inland from the coast.

Aerial Imagery Pehuajó, 80% Under Water
May 24, 2012

<http://www.agrositio.com/vertext/vertext.asp?id=133186&se=1000>

The manager of the Rural Society of Pehuajó details that the party has 450 000 hectares and employs more than a thousand producers. "80% is under water, most are not finished harvesting corn and soybeans and that did it can not move"

More than 1.1 Million Hectares Flooded in Northwestern Buenos Aires
May 24, 2012

<http://infocampo.com.ar/nota/campo/32419/mas-de-1-1-millones-de-hectareas>

In total, the number of hectares affected by floods in northwestern Buenos Aires would reach 1.1 million.

You received this Newsletter because you subscribed to the ZetaTalk Newsletter service. If undesired, you can quickly Unsubscribe.