New ZetaTalk Earth Changes Announcements Signs of the Times
Howling Earth

Earth hums have been recorded in certain places on Earth for decades, but the Earth broke into wailing howls and singing tones during the past few years, as noted in this newsletter. The Green Bay Hum, where Wisconsin is being ripped apart, was featured on August 3, 2008. A year later on October 18, 2009 the Earth roar was being reported in St. Paul and San Diego. Then by August 28, 2011 the dramatic Trumpets of Kiev arrived, vibrating the reservoir above Kiev. This was quickly followed by a Detroit Rumble on August 28, 2011 and the Horns of Belarus on September 4, 2011, as well as the Tampa Bay Howl. The UK then registered vibrations on November 17, 2013 which was blamed by the establishment on mating frogs, and Bratislava and Saskatoon were in this newsletter with yet more howling Earth on January 12, 2014.

Booms from snapping rock have likewise increased, unable to be explained away by establishment excuses such as sonic booms or flapping manhole covers. And the pace has increased, as this Pole Shift ning blog dedicated to Earth sounds attests. The howling Earth has primarily been reported in N America and from the UK across Europe, locations where the ground is being bent by the N American bow or stretched across Eurasia, a situation that will be relieved when the N Atlantic rips open and the New Madrid adjusts. A search of the Internet for YouTube recordings of the howling Earth show that the pattern of being clustered on the N American continent and in the European stretch zone has continued. London on December 11, 2013. Munich on January 18, 2014. Mexico City on January 19, 2014. And St Paul on February 13, 2014. The bowing stress appears to be increasing.

Mysterious Noises & Vibrations in Chicago

February 3, 2014

<http://www.dnainfo.com/chicago/20140203/hyde-park/hyde-park-residents-puzzled>

Residents in Hyde Park have reported a strange trembling in the neighborhood. The sound was quite variable, at times somewhat like a locomotive, at times somewhat like your giant fan, at times like something grinding away. When you put your head down on the floor, you can hear it welling up from below. The sound usually occurs about once a day in the evenings.

Loud Howling Noise Heard Across St. Paul Minnesota

February 13, 2014

<http://kstp.com/article/stories/s3325034.shtml>

People heard it for about an hour, in and around the Highland Park and Mac Groveland neighborhoods. Ramsey County dispatch said they received about 10 calls from homeowners wondering what the noise was. They sent out a few officers to investigate but they couldn't find anything. The howling traveled for miles, right through the walls of homes. I was very ghoulish. It sounded like a shrieking whales, it just sounded like a sound I never heard before.

Vibrating Gwinnett Co. Homes Mystify Neighbors

February 17, 2014

<http://dacula.patch.com/groups/around-town/p/shaken-and-stirred-mysterious-vibrations>

It is a steady staccato beat, unerring and continuous. Just low enough in frequency to be annoying, yet strong enough to literally shake a house. Several in fact. Nerves too have been shaken in this community along Little Mill Road in Gwinnett County, when neighbors awoke to the strange vibrations. No earthquake activity in the area. The same residents felt it when that quake hit in South Carolina a couple of weeks back.

The Zetas have explained since the start of the ZetaTalk saga that during the stopped rotation in the Last Weeks the entire globe will hear the howling Earth, unrelenting.

ZetaTalk Prediction 2/15/1999: As the passage nears, during that day, the Earth will begin to groan and moan, resisting yet inclined to shift. When the shift begins to happen, there are, simultaneously, pressure points and the ripping and relief of tension elsewhere. However, no motion or shifting of the crust happens until a threshold is reached, and thus the week of rotation stoppage, with increasing groaning and moaning of the Earth until the snap and shift. But until the actual shift, the tension is sustained, and the Earth groans in her agony. The moaning of the Earth is akin to material snapping, screeching rock strata pulling across other strata, and vibrations of rock strata under tension.

This has also been reported in the Kolbrin in their historical reports of prior Pole Shifts and Velikovsky reports that the ancient Greeks likewise mentioned these Earth sounds. Per the Zetas, we can anticipate an increase in the howling Earth up until the time of the Pole Shift.

The days of stillness were followed by a time when the noise of trumpeting and shrilling was heard in the Heavens, and the people became as frightened beasts without a headsman. Then a voice like ten thousand trumpets was heard. There was a high moaning above. The people will scatter in madness. They will hear the trumpet and battlecry of the Destroyer and will seek refuge within dens in the Earth.

*Hesiod in his Theogony, relating the upheaval caused by a celestial collision, says:
"The huge earth groaned."*

ZetaTalk Prediction 5/24/2014: The groaning of the Earth when being pulled apart or twisted will of course not subside but will only increase until the Last Weeks when, as we have explained, the stopped rotation of the globe will cause a moaning sound worldwide. This was described in the Kolbrin and the Bible, as unrelenting, leading into the Pole Shift. These groans and tone have appeared in places around the globe where plate movement is compressing rock or pulling it apart. In 2014, this seems to be located in the broad stretch zone from the UK to the Himalayas, and in the bowing N American continent.

Double Helix Swirls

Alberto's photos are suddenly showing a double helix swirl in a number of the Moon Swirls. This follows the appearance of concentric rings around the corpus, which began to make an appearance a month ago. Per the Zetas, these swirls have been there all along, within the long tubes that are the most common appearance of the Moon Swirls, but have been at a distance so we could not discern them.

ZetaTalk Explanation 2001: Why do the moons trail, and spin in a slow whirlwind behind Planet X, rather than orbit the planet? They are moving toward what attracts them, overshooting the point where they are closest to the attractant, moving around to the far point because of momentum, and proceeding to approach the attractant again. This swirl, unique to man in any comets or planets it observes, is what caused the ancients to call the passing monster, red in the sky because of its illuminated red dust cloud, a dragon, lashing its tail, the swirl of moons.

Such long tubes of dancing partners are not unique in nature to the moons of Planet X. For instance, photons, the particle responsible for light, do not travel in waves as often depicted but in tubes. Two photons twirl around each other, when both are moving in the same direction.

ZetaTalk Explanation 2004: They flow not in a straight line, not in a wave form, but in a twisted cable form. Like the Moons of Planet X, they swirl about each other in a double helix pattern, neither escaping or bonding, in perpetual motion. This is a dance that never ends, perhaps by God's design. When the twisted coil is on the move it, as a group, moves in the direction that the particles were flung in by the explosion of particle crowding they were escaping.

This swirling double helix pattern was apparent around the corpus of Planet X itself when it was inbound in 2003. Early photos showed what looks like shoulder pads on either side of Planet X, which then would develop a swirl in the dust cloud trailing the rapidly traveling Planet X. Per the Zetas, these shoulder pads are caused by two dominant moons, of fairly equal size, on either side of the corpus of Planet X. This is undoubtedly the basis for the Winged Globe depiction of Planet X in antiquity. The swirling shoulders can be seen on a Planet X photo taken with telescopic binoculars in the southeast US on March 31, 2003 and on a North Carolina photo taken from Chapel Hill on April 13, 2013 and on a photo from Spain taken on April 23, 2003.

ZetaTalk Explanation 7/12/2010: Planet X itself has two primary Moon Swirls that flare out on either side, like shoulder pads. This is the source of the Winged Globe shape, and the double helix shape on some photos of Planet X. These Moon Swirls keep apart from each other, though compete to be the closest Moon Swirl to the body of Planet X itself. Fairly equal in mass, they both cling close to the body of Planet X and both refuse to be displaced, thus the wings.

Per the Zetas, this changed appearance of Planet X and its Moon Swirls in 2014 is due to the fact that the complex has come closer! We are now seeing details that were there all along.

ZetaTalk Explanation 5/31/2014: Now the swirling shoulder pads are making a strong appearance in Alberto's photos, and on more than one Moon Swirl. In fact, in one of his photos, it appears that two different Moon Swirls have begun a dance, without being joined by a dominant moon at the center. What is causing this sudden change? The Moons within each Moon Swirls are in a dance behind the dominant moon in the swirl, and the reason the long tubes form behind this dominant Moon are due to the same attraction and repulsion and consequent spin that causes photons in light rays to form tubes. Dust and debris hide the dance the individual moons in the tube perform, yet it exists. We have mentioned that the vast tail of Planet X is being blow closer to Earth, as Planet X itself is coming closer. More detail is being seen, for this reason.

Grasdorf Pictogram

Three metal discs were discovered buried beneath a crop circle laid in Grasdorf, Germany in 1991, and remained unexplained to this date. The metal is of a purity such that it was unlikely to have been forged by prehistoric man.

Alien Artifacts Discovered Underneath Crop Circles

3 Metal discs found in the Grasdorf Pictogram, Germany 1991. The farmer Werner Harenberg woke up early in the morning of July 23 1991 to discover Germany's first really spectacular crop circle near the village of Grasdorf, Lower Saxony in the historic Teutoburger Wald Area, not far from Hannover, and indeed not far from the prehistoric site of Externsteine, part natural rock, part carvings, caves and bearing various signs of what seems like long and varied religious practices.

The Word is Nine

<http://www.cropcircleanswers.com/thewordisnine.htm>

18 inches below the ground, in three of the pictograms design symbols three large metal plates of extremely pure Gold, Silver, and Bronze, were unearthed, each containing the complete pictogram design in relief field design.

Alien Artifacts of Gasdorf Germany

October 23, 2010

<http://arcturi.blogspot.com/2010/10/alien-artifacts-of-gasdorf-germany>

The silver plate consisted of 99.9% pure silver, purer than sterling-silver. Furthermore, a spectrographic analysis of both plates proved that they had not been made from a cast but from some kind of conglomerate of silver nuggets and natural copper and tin pieces of the type found in Germany's Harz forest, not far from Grasdorf.

The circle design site was close to Externsteine, Germany, which contains a solar Solstice viewer. Per the Zetas, the answers to all of this lies with the Annunaki, who built the Solstice viewer and forged the plates as they wanted to document a crop circle design that had been laid at Grasdorf in the past!

Externsteine

<http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Externsteine>

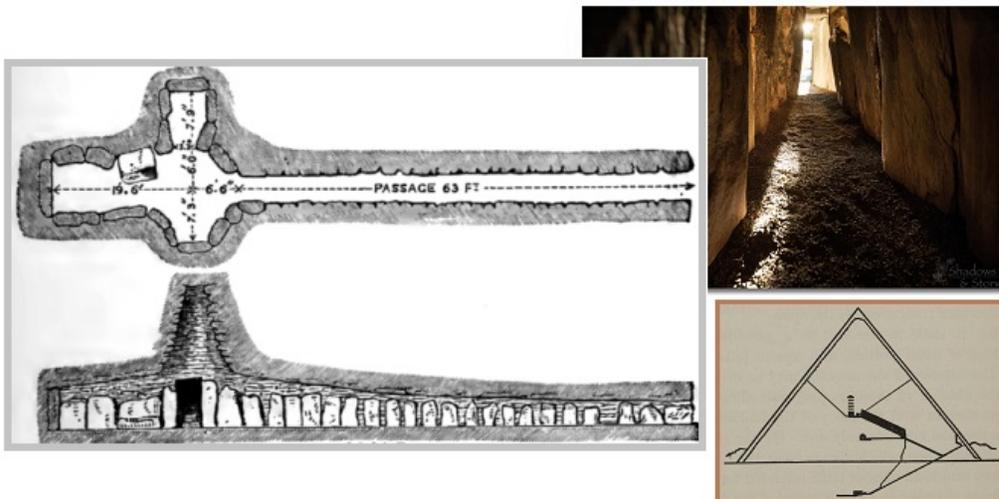

The Externsteine belong to the Teutoburger Wald and are a natural outcropping of five sandstone pillars. The pillars have been modified and decorated by humans over the centuries. At the top of the tallest stone is a chamber, now open. Archaeological excavations did not produce any findings earlier than the 11th century BC, other than some Paleolithic and Mesolithic stone tools dating to before about 10,000 BC. Directly above the altarstone a circular hole is cut into the wall, facing the direction of sunrise at the time of Summer Solstice.

ZetaTalk Explanation 6/7/2014: It is obvious from the pictograph metal plates found at Grasdorf, Germany that the genuine crop circle placed there in 1991 has had a predecessor. The identical design had been laid in the past, and recorded for antiquity on metal plates. The metal of these plates – Silver, Gold, and Bronze - appears to be of such purity that it is doubtful it could have come from human forges. The crop circle location is close to the Externsteine stones, which include a Solstice sighting hole which would have been correct prior to the last Pole Shift.

So who created the metal plates, and what was the purpose of burying them in the ground? The purity of the metal implies they were not forged by man, nor would aliens have buried plates as their crop circle warnings are above ground and visible. The Solstice sighting hole at Externsteine was put in place by the Annunaki, just as they used the Great Pyramids in Egypt as a sighting device for the arrival of Nibiru prior to the last Pole Shift. Mankind was warned by aliens of the pending passage of Nibiru, just as they are today, of the dual 270° roll that Nibiru makes as it passes through the Ecliptic. The Annunaki wanted to document this explicit diagram while making note of key locations on the design, and accomplished this by burying the plates.

The Annunaki were noted for other astronomical sighting devices too, such as New Grange in Ireland, which likewise is no longer accurate since the last Pole Shift at the time of the Jewish Exodus shifted the crust slightly. The Great Pyramids were designed to give an early warning that the reddish light of the inbound Nibiru could be seen out in the direction of the constellation Orion, and thus the Annunaki on Earth should prepare to deliver the Gold they had assembled.

Ancient Sacred Sites Aligned to the Winter Solstice

<http://belsebuub.com/articles/ancient-sacred-sites-aligned-to-the-winter-solstice>

Newgrange is a giant one acre mound, resembling a grass-topped temple, said to have been built around 3,200 BC. Once a year, at the winter solstice, the rising sun enters the mound through a specially built roofbox above the main entrance and shines directly along the nineteen-meter-long passage, gradually widening until illuminating the inner chamber for about seventeen minutes. Today the first light enters about four minutes after sunrise, but calculations based on the precession of the Earth show that five thousand years ago first light would have entered exactly at sunrise.

ZetaTalk Comment 9/25/2010: New Grange is noted for solstice sightings, where the sunlight comes in around dawn on the Winter Solstice. In that the former N Pole was Greenland, and the crustal shift during the last shift merely pulled Greenland to a more southerly latitude, viewing of the solstice only changed before and after the solstice by timing. The Sun arcs in a north to south direction in the Northern Hemisphere in winter, and thus eventually comes across the opening by which the Winter Solstice is measured. When further north, the Sun came through earlier. Does some sunlight come through this opening prior to or after the solstice? Of course, as how would it not? The opening is not a pinpoint. But the approximate time of the Winter Solstice could be noted.

ZetaTalk Explanation 11/15/1995: It is known that a hidden chamber exists, accessible only via a tunnel so narrow that it might be traveled by a rat, yet so straight and long that it could only have been used for sighting. A liquid pooled in the shallow basin and reflecting light outward only when light shown down the long tunnel at that particular angle - the light from the approaching Planet X. Various other sighting tunnels, as yet undiscovered, caught the reflected light. The liquid, of course, evaporated over time, leaving only the puzzle behind.

Obama's Double

Obama suddenly made a couple of very public appearances – one on May 22, 2014 to stroll from the White House to the Interior Department and another an unannounced visit to the troops in Afghanistan on May 25. Considering the number of assassination attempts he has weathered over the past months, this was surprising. In March, 2013 he survived both an attempt to disable his armored car in Israel and an attempt to force him to use poisoned tableware at a Republican luncheon. On May 11, 2013 there was a fire in the West Wing of the White House, which had to be evacuated. On June 17, 2013 he survived an attempt to distract Santa Monica law enforcement with a shootout during Obama's visit with Xi. In September, 2013 he survived an attempt to distract Washington DC law enforcement with the Navy Ship Yard shooting. On December 13, 2013 he survived another attempt in S Africa when a Schizophrenic interpreter with a history of violence was stationed on the platform next to Obama when he had an episode. Given all this, what is he doing out in the open? Per the Zetas, Obama has now employed doubles.

<http://politicalticker.blogs.cnn.com/2014/05/22/obama-goes-for-a-walk/>

President Obama stunned tourists and others outside of the White House as he decided to take a stroll to the nearby Interior Department, accompanied by his sizable security detail.

Obama, in Afghanistan Visit, says he's Hopeful on Security Pact

May 25, 2014

<http://www.reuters.com/article/2014/05/25/us-usa-afghanistan-obama>

Cheers erupted among the hundreds of U.S. troops gathered in a Bagram hangar. With Afghanistan immersed in a runoff election to choose a successor to President Hamid Karzai, Obama did not meet Afghan government officials nor travel to the capital Kabul. Obama's visit to Bagram took place late on Sunday night local time. He was joined by national security adviser Susan Rice and senior adviser John Podesta, who has a son stationed in Afghanistan.

ZetaTalk Confirmation 5/31/2014: Does Obama have a look alike? He has more than one, as all world leaders do. Selected for looks and not intellect, one would never know. Thus the very public walk in the open recently from the White House to the Interior Department, where tourists flocked to embrace Obama. Likewise with this recent unannounced trip to Afghanistan, where Obama's intent was relayed to the troops, but by a stand-in. Until the announcement, any public exposure of Obama is likely to be a double, with all decisions well behind closed and highly secure doors. What was the point of the obvious public walk on the streets, pictures taken with tourists? The message to the cover-up crowd is that they have not succeeded, that all is on schedule and without fear of repercussion. Those still at large but unable to succeed have had their claws and fangs blunted, their cohorts in the federal government removed from power.
