The Call

The Zetas talk about what The Call is, and human Equivalents to The Call; Who Takes the Call and how the term Lightworker relates; how those giving the Service-to-Self Call are monitored without telepathy; how one can be Unaware they are giving The Call but Intuition can serve as a guide; how Curiosity or Prayer can be The Call; why more than the spirits called respond during Seances; whether Incantations or Emblems assist in giving The Call; how aliens are Awaiting the Call and why calls are answered Without Delay; how some contactees are Prime Targets during the Transformation; whether aliens as Trouble Makers have affected the Lot of Man; and how we can defray intimidation from aliens if we Just Say No.

The Zetas talks about how an Contactee Call in most cases is due to a Pre-Birth Agreement; what happens when someone desiring alien technology gives a Technology Call; whether we can request a Close Encounter and receive Enlightenment as a result of having given The Call; whether Scallion's Predictions or the prophecies of Edgar Cayce reflect giving The Call; how Prophecy can foretell the future; what happens if a group of humans give a conflicting Simultaneous Call to different alien groups; whether there is such a thing as a Collective Call from the masses; why a Leadership Call or an MJ12 Call is given different treatment; what type of Zeta Call the Zetas communicating here are attuned to; if there are Pole Shift Calls and the spreading Awareness and how Aftertime Calls will operate in the mixed environment.

The Zetas talk about the rumors that Hitler and the Nazis gave a World War II call; what happens during Satanic Rituals; whether the Origin of AIDS was a result of someone giving The Call and the goals in Spreading AIDS; whether Africa is a Targeted Continent; and how the Ebola Virus relates. The Zetas talk about the Human Condition and how this plays into the desire to get the Upper Hand; why humans often find themselves to be a Cornered Victim; what role Spirit Guides play; whether it is myth or truth that the Antichrist is among us; whether World War III is inevitable; whether the Devil exists; whether the 10 Commandments were the result of a call; whether the premise stated in The Gods of Eden is correct; and why a Canadian Visit from Kladen occurred.

ZetaTalk: The Call

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

The concept of The Call is but an extension of concepts humans are familiar with. One goes to the porch to call the family into dinner. One picks up the phone to call another in order to converse. When giving The Call to aliens, humans are issuing a request for contact, without a voice, without words, but the meaning is sent and understood nonetheless, by telepathic and other such wordless and wireless means. The Call is made, received, and understood, and a conference is subsequently arranged. There are times of loneliness, despair, wrenching concern for a loved one injured or in trouble, times the individual wants to offer themselves in the loved one's stead, times when the path to follow is not clear and there is indecision and hesitation at the gateway, times when another is viewed as a blockage to be removed by physical and potentially violent and harmful means - these sorts of times occur, not daily, but many times in a lifetime. These are times of The Call.

The individual is in control of alien interactions affecting him or her self. This is in fact intuitively understood by most humans, even those who are unaware of alien influences over their lives. The reason this is intuitively understood is because of interactions not consciously remembered. All humans give The Call, and do so frequently during any given lifetime.

ZetaTalk: Equivalents

Note: written Jan 15, 2000

Humans are often confused about The Call because so much of their lives are outer directed, controlled by society and the many people in society who consider control of prime importance. One must have a Social Security Number, have children registered in school, etc., and there are many shackles in life where humans are not free or out of the control of the establishment or the many people who form the web of the establishment. People are often in those positions of control because they are control freaks and it is extremely important to them to be in control. They go into management or politics or professions such as the medical profession or become preachers or teachers because they can control others. This can also be seen in wives who wrap a web of control around their husbands and children, or very attractive women using sex or their beauty to control others. It's endless.

Because of this, 3rd Density entities are confused when presented with the concept of The Call. Does this mean they have knocked on the door of a teacher and stated that they need help with their studies, and then being outer directed, they will be swept away and given a schedule? Humans are aware of telepathy, where one can be on the same wave length as another and will phone when a friend or relative is in distress. This telepathy is a form of The Call that humans can conceptualize. Basically, they are asking for a conversation with an old friend or relative who then phones them. Sometimes a request for The Call in human society is done by body language. A woman may wave her hand in a particular way and the policeman on the corner notices this and comes to her rescue. This is a Call to the policeman. One way to understand The Call is to consider it a form of communication outside of the modes that humans understand and normally use. It is a request for conversation and interaction, where the human initiates this conversation, outside of the modes humans understand such as approaching someone face-to-face, writing a letter, or picking up the phone.

When humans give The Call on a world being visited by entities from higher densities, they are asking to chat with these entities. This goes beyond asking for a chat. The human is asking for intervention. Where the visiting entities cannot intervene, the human is then asking for the information to be relayed to other humans who might be asking to be allowed to intervene, to help others. These two humans are both giving The Call, and as they are not calling concerned with themselves, their personal well being, and they are calling concerned about others, we as Service-to-Other entities respond to both these calls. We are aware of both, and it's not very hard to get both together during the same visitation, physically together on a space ship, having a chat.

This would all be recorded in the subconscious of the two humans, who might find themselves drawn in a certain direction, scanning faces in a crowd, perhaps, and before long find they find they are talking to each other like, though strangers, like long-lost brothers. Both find the other has been thinking about the same problem and one has a solution the other is seeking. This may seem like a remarkable coincidence, but it is not a coincidence at all. Various humans have given The Call, and various alien visitors have listened to this call. It's a request for information, for a conference, for counsel, or for opportunity. It's no different than knocking on a door or writing a letter except that this is done without the human's conscious knowledge. The human has subconscious knowledge, and certainly his soul knows. The Call is simply a more diverse type of communication with other entities.

ZetaTalk: Who Takes The Call

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

The Call is answered by all sorts, depending on the nature of The Call. When The Call is issued in the Service-to-Other, ourselves and our brethren in the Service-to-Other answer. The choice of whom a given caller is dealing with is not made by anything so arbitrary as take-a-number, or dividing up the cities. The choice is by type of activity, and if The Call one gives falls into a certain category, then that particular Service-to-Other alien group responds. Although there are many Service-to-Others groups at work, hundreds, in fact, this is far easier to maintain, as the group's scan can be set for certain types of thoughts, and all who trip the scan will receive a response. This is simple and direct.

When The Call is given in the Service-to-Self, unpleasant visitations can arise. This may confuse some people who feel that they were sincerely calling out of concern and love, in a prayer, for instance. Prayer is often encapsulated in a request to be saved from distress, so it is easy to see how self concern can creep into such a Call, even though this Call is structured in what some in human society would term as a loving or religious way and not at all self centered. Fear, in and of itself, is a mechanism that those in the Service-to-Self use to drive those leaning in that direction, those contemplating those thoughts, further in that direction. Those who are fearful are very much looking out for themselves. Yell "Fire!" in a crowded theater, and how many people think of others. They think of themselves.

ZetaTalk: Lightworker

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

---

Humans are familiar with the term caseworker, as one who works on a case such as a welfare case, a child abuse case, a probation case. Caseworker is a term used in a sociological context. Substitute caseworker for lightworker and you get the gist of the meaning of the term. The term lightworker refers to one who is working to bring mankind into the light, or into knowledge of how the Universe works. Contactees use this term loosely to refer to their contacting alien or spirit. It is not a bad analogy, and is an apt term, as all aliens working on Earth are here to influence mankind in some manner. Lightworkers sometimes refer to themselves as being in the family of light, which is just their way of saying that they are a group.

As some aliens are here to influence mankind to join the Service-to-Self orientation, we feel the term lightworker should not be applied to them, but humans sometimes have difficulty differentiating and those in the Service-to-Self can use very deceptive inducements at times. All who claim they are lightworkers should not be given the benefit of the doubt without some scrutiny first. What are their motives and methods? What seems to be their goal? Humans should take charge of their contacts, and be discerning.

ZetaTalk: Service-to-Self Call

Note: written Jun 15, 1996

Where visitors in the Service-to-Other keep rapt attention to the thoughts of those who are preparing to give The Call, those in the Service-to-Self find such attention to others not of their liking. They delegate. Their minions, who cannot object on pain of torture, are set to monitor for the signs that someone is giving The Call to the Service-to-Self. This is done not by telepathy but by computer, which traces, surprisingly enough, a brain wave configuration generated when humans are dealing either with rage or intense defensive postures. This brain wave is generated almost continuously in those strongly in the Service-to-Self, as they are constantly enraged that their surroundings aren't placating them! It is not the level of this brain wave that is monitored, it is the constancy, and when located this individual is watched more closely. They may get a specific invitation, periodically, as their brain wave configuration has marked them as one in the Service-to-Self, in essence giving The Call continuously due to their frustration. Of a like mind, one might say.

ZetaTalk: Unaware

Note: written Nov 15, 1995

Humans are astonished to learn they have given The Call and can dismiss alien encounters at will, as they have no awareness of this. Being unaware, they assume that someone else is in charge. However, even though the visit was recorded only in the subconscious there are definite signs that The Call has been given, and answered.

Take the example of a small town banker, who late in a life of quiet adherence to all the rules of social propriety and fiscal responsibility begins to seethe. Life has passed him by and he sees his declining years before him with no chance of a reprieve. He wants to break out of the mold but doesn't know how. He feels angry at his stocky wife, with whom intimacy long ago died, and wishes to be rid of her. He approaches stop signs in his conservative car and brakes reluctantly, wanting to gun through the intersection, non-stop. He finds himself staring at the balance sheets that pass before him, musing about what money can and can't do for a person. In short, he is at one of those times that occur several times during a lifetime when he is giving The Call, whether he is aware of it or not.

Now, since the banker is focused on himself at this time, The Call has been extended to those in the Service-to-Self orientation. He is perhaps visited in the bank while working after hours, and is encouraged in his line of thinking. Take the money and run; pick up someone young and appreciative elsewhere; money can buy love - that type of encouragement. Two possible outcomes are most likely. In one, the banker, emboldened by the unhesitating encouragement he has received, embezzles. Finding this deed undiscovered the next day, he embezzles more, and then feeling that he has tempted fate after a few days or weeks, he bolts for the border. In the other outcome, the banker allows himself to contemplate the results of his planned actions but is distressed at the thought of his friends and neighbors having to make up the loss. He puts his rebellious feelings aside, and distracts himself with a new hobby such as gardening.

In both outcomes the banker has marked a change in his life as a result of having given The Call. His friends and family notice that he moves from brooding and irritability to either acting out of character by absconding with the money or for unexplained reasons becoming a more devoted husband and gardener. In like manner, humans who have given The Call to those in the Service-to-Others orientation may suddenly find courage to confront oppressors, give away possessions to others in need, or rescue others they formerly ignored - all the while unaware.

ZetaTalk: Intuition

Note: written Dec 15, 1995

Humans are accustomed to suspecting their thoughts and conclusions, and learning of the alien presence only adds to this unease. On top of having a subconscious they find they can't deal with directly, and a conscious that is selective in what it will entertain and is prone to modifying memory, they now learn that aliens are slipping in and out of their view. Can one trust one's own perceptions?

In all of this there are several solid anchors, which cross levels of human consciousness and the various densities that incarnated entities can reside in. Where the human conscious is fickle, the subconscious neither forgets or lies, and where ordinarily a human can only tap the subconscious through the veil of consciousness, the voice of the subconscious is never silenced. Some humans call staying in tune with their subconscious intuition, or following their hunches or gut feelings, but all this is just a sense that what is consciously presented may not be all that's going on. In like manner, those who are spiritually aware are keeping their mind and spirit in close touch, constantly updating the human subconscious with what the spirit perceives inter-dimensionally during communications with other entities of whatever density.

Thus intuition can serve as the glue by which a human stays consciously in touch with activities it is not consciously aware of, as lack of faith in one's intuition can leave one open to surprises. For example, a non-intuitive contactee who has given The Call to the Service-to-Self for assistance with a neighborhood confrontation may be surprised to find himself resorting to violence and threats with slight provocation, and even more surprised to find this leaving him feeling alienated and isolated. In the same example an intuitive contactee would have a hunch that he was planning a different course of action, by listening to his subconscious which has registered the visitation, and would likewise anticipate that the power and respect he had hoped to achieve would come at a price, having observed the emotional climate surrounding those who answered his call.

ZetaTalk: Curiosity

Note: written Jul 15, 1995

The ancient Greeks studied more than philosophy in their debates. They studied the ways of nature - physics, astronomy, and chemistry. In those days the going opinion was that the world was flat, and the heavens were doing a dance at the whim of the gods, whoever they may be. They had no microscopes, no accelerators or centrifugal machines, and were incapable of separating chemicals to test out their theories. They did not even have a concept of subatomic particles. How could they, when matter was only falling into categories of solid, liquid, vapor, and spirit.

Yet one man, Democritus, hypothesized that matter had the same base component, and that these were tiny balls in clumps of few or many. Tiny balls that moved swiftly or stood still, and clung to each other or had a life of independence - molecules! How did the concept rise in one never exposed to even the concept of a solar system, orbiting planets around a central sun, much less the elements in the Atomic Table and their theoretical subatomic structure. Democritus was given to quiet times in his garden, where he pondered such simple wonders as rain drops and the ripples they caused in puddles. In essence, he gave The Call, and was heard by aliens who spent many hours with him, on repeated occasions, demonstrating how things work. Democritus would be returned to his garden, where his wife thought he had been all along, to sort this all out. Where the aliens answering his call may have found a ready student, Democritus was not so lucky with his fellow man, who ridiculed him for what they considered his preposterous positions.

ZetaTalk: Prayer

Note: written Jul 15, 1995

When one sends a prayer aloft to their God, are they in essence giving The Call? Depends on the prayer, and on the intent behind the prayer in particular. Many prayers are routine, done in the same hurried manner as brushing the teeth, to put the task behind one. Other prayers, though routine, are done in a fond manner, full of feeling, and this may or may not be The Call. Does the prayer simply give thanks for home, health, and bounty? This is then in the same category as meditating on one's circumstances and acknowledging that much of life is outside of one's control. Where prayers are put forth with feeling and include a request, this is in essence The Call, and regardless of the words used, or to whom the prayer is addressed, the one answering The Call will be responding to the intent, not the words. Should one ask, with words, that one's little sister be protected, but ask in the heart and mind that she meet with an untimely death, one has not given The Call to the Service-to-Others. Likewise, prayers that ask for blessings for the self are most likely to bring the Service-to-Self in answer.

Sincere prayers for others, on the other hand, are a call to the Service-to-Others, such as ourselves. For those who say that in this statement we are asserting that we are God's angels, we would respond that all God's creatures who respond in love to help another are God's angels, including humans now on Earth. What is an angel, after all, but one who waits to help when needed, or when called?

ZetaTalk: Seances

Note: written May 15, 1997

Talking with the dead has been a time honored endeavor, and all human cultures have terms for and tales about this common human experience. Most of the tales are told by those who recently lost a loved one, and the bond continues for a time due to unfinished business and concerns that the recently deceased has about those still living. The most famous tales are told about hauntings, where a particular spirit hangs about a location such as a house, wanting some kind of justice done or lingering due to past attachments. Seances, where the dead are deliberately called, are a form of The Call, and as such fall under the rules whereby more than the loved one called can arrive. Thus, a seance can bring forth the spirit called, other restless formerly human spirits, and various visiting aliens who may or may not materialize depending on the setting.

A group of people fervently asking a spirit to manifest, to communicate with them, will reach that spirit by one means or another. That the spirit does not manifest is due not to The Call failing to reach this spirit, but to reluctance or disinterest. If the spirit has incarnated again and is caught up in a new life, they may dismiss The Call to them without giving it a thought. If the spirit was tired of the talk about a subject or obligations that were imposed by those who are now calling it, the spirit may turn its back and refuse to participate, free at last in death. If the spirit likewise has been longing to communicate, it may take the opportunity, or may decide that a one-on-one with this or that individual is preferable and make their own arrangements later, haunting the one they wish to communicate with.

When The Call is given to a spirit that incarnated as a human, this spirit can be called for its most recent life, the most recent incarnation, or can be called for one of its past lives. All are remembered by the spirit as vividly as the most recent incarnation. However, this setting is virtually begging for interference by Service-to-Self aliens looking to influence humans at every opportunity. Most calls to spirits who incarnated famous or influential humans in the past are done not for altruistic reasons, but for personal gain. Where did you bury the gold, what was the missing piece to the puzzle that would allow an idea to be patented, where are the manuscripts stored, etc. Thus The Call has been given to the Service-to-Self, who are notable for lying and leading astray. Pretending to be the spirit called is easy, and feeding the self-serving tendencies of the humans giving The Call easier still.

Identity cards cannot be checked at seances, so anyone and anything might manifest, pretending to be the spirit called!

ZetaTalk: Incantations

Note: written Jul 15, 1996

Permeating human culture is the notion that one can influence events with magical words - prayers, mantras, voodoo spells and black magic. Advocates point to what they consider results, where a practitioner mutters the right words and afterwards the desired effect occurred. Much of the desired effect is brought about in the human giving the chant or his audience, due to suggestion. The practitioner and his audience believe the effect will occur, and adjust their lives and actions to the degree they can so that this will occur. Thus if the chant was to make an ill person well, the person will announce that they indeed feel better and their care givers will affirm this. Since health is as much in the mind of the patient and his attendants as in the actual physical state of the patient, an observed improvement is quite possible. What lies outside of the practitioner's control falls in the realm of possibilities in any case, so that when things happen they are attributed to the chant, not chance. Thus an incantation to generate rainfall will be credited with the next storm that occurs where in fact rain was pending anyway.

Incantations can also be The Call, if done with a sincere wish for assistance outside of oneself. Ordinarily the practitioner and his audience are fervently desiring the outcome, and thus The Call is being given. Here something extraordinary may occur, as multiple calls have been given and all may be answered, simultaneously. Each individual in this drama may thus have a different mind-set as a result of their individual conferences. They may have received new information or new insight into matters. The synergy of this change within several individuals can result in extraordinary activity on the part of the group, activity that results in an outcome not previously possible. Should The Call have been from a seashore community suffering from poor catches, and many individuals in the community suddenly realize they have been fishing in the wrong place or at the wrong times, the catches may improve dramatically. All is attributed to the incantations, when in fact the exact words had nothing to do with the process.

ZetaTalk: Emblems

Note: written Oct 15, 1996

As with incantations, emblems do not in and of themselves affect change, but effect change by their effect on the humans who view them. Emblems are not themselves inherently good or evil, as they simply stand as a symbol.

An emblem signifying the Sun, for instance, could carry a message of warmth, reliability, and the beneficence of an abundant harvest. It could likewise signify drought, searing heat, and a persistent dominance that those in the desert cannot escape. Where emblems are associated with results, they can incline a human to give The Call when in their presence. Such is the case with many religious emblems, but emblems and their effects on humans permeate human society beyond what they would suppose. The babe gazing at empty baby bottles washed and ready to be filled is reacting to them as an emblem, anticipating being cuddled and fed. The emblem of the Red Cross, for instance, inclines toward giving The Call to the Service-to-Other, as it signifies caring for others during times of great need and brings these thoughts to mind. The Nazis swastika, in approximately the same shape, has become an emblem for those espousing elitism and cruelty to those outside the elite circle and brings these thoughts to mind. Thus emblems create results only due to human motivation and mental associations.

ZetaTalk: Awaiting the Call

Note: written Feb 15, 1996

We have stated that aliens are restrained from interfering with the free will of humans, must await The Call, and can only affect human affairs through human actions at this time. Do these rules get stretched, or have loopholes, or do aliens just watch and wait in agony? Both situations occur. Where The Call is being given almost continuously, and where the Earth is virtually swarming with alien visitors at this time, there is neither an excess of calls awaiting an answer or an excess of visitors awaiting The Call - a good balance. However, within these parameters there is great flexibility.

For example, a high priority call is where a human desiring contact is in a position to influence the course of human affairs, is in a leadership or pivotal position, and is judged to be of sufficient spiritual maturity that their resolve to complete their chosen mission is strong. Likewise, a low priority call, from the standpoint of influencing human affairs, would be a call from a human who is spiritually undecided as to their orientation, is waffling so that neither orientation could count on them to stay the course, and is giving The Call because they are concerned with a personal matter that affects little but themselves.

Beyond which calls get attention, there is the matter of what constitutes a response. This can range all the way from a brief conference with a single visitor to an elaborate series of visits from a virtual army of aliens. There are no rules guiding alien behavior on Earth that bound or constrain the size of a response to The Call. Therefore, where we must wait, we most certainly can anticipate and prepare, and in this regard, The Call is a mutual process.

ZetaTalk: Without Delay

Note: written Oct 15, 1995

The Call is most often answered as soon as it is given, unless the nature of The Call is such that preparation or timing are involved. An example of preparations might involve the human giving The Call needing to gather information or poll other humans, essentially preparing themselves for the conference. An example of timing might be where The Call involves a conference with several humans and a convenient time when they could all experience a bit of missing time needs to be arranged. The nature of The Call is such that the group called, whether in Service-to-Self or Service-to-Other, does not want the moment to pass. Delays can result in a change of heart, so The Call is answered promptly.

ZetaTalk: Prime Targets

Note: written Aug 15, 1996

As the Awakening and concurrent Transformation proceed, those humans deemed to be prime targets by Service-to-Self aliens are less often those whose souls might be won to their orientation and more often individuals who might make a difference. These humans, almost invariably contactees of aliens in the Service-to-Other orientation, are not so much targeted directly as indirectly. Others close to them - children, employers, the extended family, neighbors - when giving The Call to the Service-to-Self, find their call not only answered promptly but by a team of specialists who explore to the limits possible how the human who gave The Call might be enlisted to harass and demoralize the target. This harassment is notable for being outside of what the contactee/target normally finds in their life, and this is the primary clue the contactee/target should be looking for. What are the methods used, and how might a contactee/target recognize them if they are applied to themselves or their friends.

- Contactees in Service-to-Others concentrate hard on their missions, filled with concern for those they are trying to rescue or protect. Where those in the Service-to-Self, whether alien visitors or humans, cannot often turn the head of such a human, they can distract them. If the contactee/target depends on family or friends or employer, the reliability of such support is threatened or interrupted. Thus the contactee/target may find his work performance suddenly questioned, his spouse becoming disinterested as though an affair were in process, or the local bully taking interest in power games.
- Contactees in Service-to-Others derive satisfaction from helping others, and where they focus on making a difference in the long term rather than on short term expressions of gratitude, they are only human, as you say, and can become demoralized. Often those humans whom the contactee/target is trying to help can be influenced by those in the Service-to-Self, as their lives are fraught with trouble and this kind of stress tends to make one self-focused. Thus, the contactee/target may find those he is trying to help surly, brushing off his offers, rejecting the premise of the assistance, demanding to be given more or different assistance, or frankly insulting.
- Contactees in Service-to-Others have their strengths and weaknesses, and can be targeted through what might be called personal weak links. If the contactee/target feels insecure about their looks, they may find others they come in contact with drawing back as though they have bad breath or are exuding an offensive odor. If the contactee/target is worried about financial security they may find that their broker is calling with bad news. If the contactee/target simply can't say no to aging relatives in distress over a diminished lifestyle or health problems, the target may find they are inundated with calls for help in the face of such distress. If the contactee/target can't resist a pretty face or an admirer, they may find themselves embroiled in a romantic affair that leads at first to distractions in the form of excitement and later in the form of grief and rumination over a broken affair.

ZetaTalk: Trouble Makers

Note: written Oct 15, 1995

Humans, on their own accord, do violence to one another - murder, maim, torture, abandon in the face of devastation, plot the demise of rivals, enslave, wage war for the trophies, sacrifice each other, and live well on what the blood of others bought.

What would be the state of affairs had alien entities not responded to The Call, in the hypothetical situation where the rules would have been such that humans could not be contacted by aliens of either orientation. Where the birth of the AIDS and Ebola viruses were assisted by information, pointers, given to members of the CIA who had given The Call to those in the Service-to-Self, and where the Nazis who conducted so-called medical experiments on those interned in their death camps were likewise advised on how to create the deepest sense of helplessness in their victims by those in the Service-to-Self whom they had called, nevertheless the equation computing overall impact must take into consideration the countervailing activities of those in the Service-to-Others. Vaccines, high yielding domestic plants, anti-pollution measures, and the social structure you term democracies all have the stamp of aliens working in the Service-to-Other who have responded to The Call from humans of like intent.

In any major conflict, such as a war or the imposition of repressive social measures, one can find aliens in the Service-to-Self working in the background to create or enhance the environment that reaps the most recruits for their orientation. Controlled, repressive environments, where free thinking and freedom of action is limited or made difficult, where the individual feels abandoned and frightened, where the focus is perforce on the self and thoughts of others crowded out, all these favor the development of recruits in the Service-to-Self. But likewise, in major conflicts or working quietly behind the scenes are those in the Service-to-Others. Where new laws or policies favoring freedom of thought and action, information flow, and development of technologies or methods that serve the common good are being developed, we of the Service-to-Others are there. In sum, it balances out, else the rules would not allow such activity, being a breach as it would be of the Rule of Non-Interference.

ZetaTalk: Lot of Man

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

The lot of mankind, including the pain women bear in giving birth to infants with heads seemingly too large for their pelvic opening, has come under a lot of speculation. This has been ascribed to Eve's role in the Fall, as her punishment, for instance. Likewise, much speculation abounds about some of the diseases that mankind suffers. Lepers are quite often banned as unclean, with their lot blamed on the lepers as a curse brought on by their sins. Cancer victims are often treated in a like manner, as though they have a sin to hide, not just a disease to bear. If not the sufferer, then perhaps another has caused the infliction by casting a curse. Voodoo tales abound along these lines, with curse casters capable of inflicting death from afar.

Painful childbirth, like many peculiarities of man, is the result of genetic engineering. Leprosy is just a simple infectious disease, like the common cold, common to all who are unfortunate enough to encounter it while in a susceptible state. Cancer, of course, is a natural occurrence, and the cancer simply the failure of the body to rid itself promptly of a mutation. Voodoo victims cause their own deaths, their hearts stopped by intense fear, nicely cooperating with the curse. Why do humans persist in wanting to ascribe suffering to someone's will or deed? In part they are sensing the motives of those in the Service-to-Self, who reap recruits both in those rejected and in those rejecting when despair and hopelessness abound, and find themselves less influential when humans are comfortably with each other.

Where the Service-to-Self crowd has had little to do with mankind's unhappy lot, they have on occasion answered The Call and assisted with the spread of disease and despair. War and the debasement of others is commonly the route used, however, and disease is seldom considered. The reason for this is not only that disease affects all, and as with biological warfare, the threat of self infection is so great, but also that the ability of men to create biological weapons is recent. Where diseases have been around for centuries, they are not candidates for suspicion as biological weapons, but where a disease is newly emergent, this is certainly a possibility.

ZetaTalk: Just Say No

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

As spiritual entities allowed to have contact with humans are either Service-to-Self or Service-to-Others, their orientation is acute and easily discernible. One has but to pay attention. Even the spiritually immature can decipher the difference. Your human archetypes suffice. The Service-to-Self entities that respond to The Call of humans are not in need, and any bid for sympathy or rescue is just a ploy. They are physically mature, and among cohorts. They are on the hunt, looking for prey, and the humans vulnerable to their domination and control are the hunted. You should not allow yourself to be overpowered, as you can decline, or to be engaged with bids for sympathy.

The human too often does not understand that non-humans are not allowed to overpower humans except by permission. Where with humans the unreasonable demand is often supplanted with amelioration, this is not the case with non-human demands from the Service-to-Self. Their demands are insatiable. And to give in to these demands only leads one to join their ranks. A firm line should be drawn. If one has determined not to join the Service-to-Self orientation, and is leaning toward cooperation and empathy with other entities, then the line should be drawn, absolutely.

ZetaTalk: Contactee Call

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

The Service-to-Self oriented, which we cannot address in great detail due to the Rules of Engagement, should not be confused with ourselves. Many abductions where there are genuine complaints are due to The Call being given to the Service-to-Self. Our treatment of our contactee and treatment at the hands of the Service-to-Self are wholly different.

Our hybrid program is carried out by volunteers. The cries of distress by our contactee-volunteers are no more than the complaints made after vaccination by your military volunteers. Our actions are not harsh or inflicting permanent or great harm. We will address some of our actions, as examples. We accept the gift of genetic material, most often in the form of sperm or ova. We accept the offer of the use of a donor's womb, in the precious early weeks which are so crucial to the very young. The donor's womb is the least harsh environment, as there is genetic compatibility beyond any other. There is also love, as a mother to its young, which is a factor in all life generating operations. Love improves the success ratio. We, the Service-to-Others Zetas, follow and monitor many individuals. Some of these individuals are involved in our hybrid program, most are not. Individuals monitored are sometimes examined and assisted with health problems.

The above examples of our alien-human interactions, which are typical but by no means represent all of our interactions, sometimes results in human complaints. The human was frightened, was inconvenienced, has a mark or a scar. We would call attention to how often humans complain about situations they volunteer for and have no intention of terminating - marriage, employment, parenthood, filial responsibility, government service, public office, friendship. Do you complain about these situations, the demands, the conflicts, the burdens? Most certainly. Just so, not all alien interactions, entered into voluntarily, are recalled as a tea party afterwards. This does not change the essential nature of The Call given, as voluntarily.

ZetaTalk: Pre-Birth Agreement

Note: written Sep 15, 1995

How can the hybrid program continue along family lines if The Call must be given by a human before contact can be made? Are all these family members just conveniently falling into line, giving The Call, just as the genetic engineers need their sperm and ova contributions? Hardly. The hybrid program involves a tiny number of humans relative to the populace as a whole, but their cooperation is key to success. Consequently, at least one, and more often two children within the family line have been screened prior to birth for their willingness to cooperate. By this we mean that the incarnating spirit has been so screened, and in almost all cases remembers this on a gut level.

UFOlogists speculate on the number of contactees, but they are nowhere near the correct number. The number of known contactees, those who have undergone hypnosis or systematic recall and fit the classic hybrid program pattern, is small - a few hundred. The number of postulated contactees, based on the results of a small survey, is in the tens of millions. The true number of humans in the hybrid program is in the thousands, and the majority will never be known to UFOlogists because they are quietly cooperative and suffer any inconveniences in silence. Does the pre-birth agreement ever run amuck? Rarely, but when it does extreme measures are taken in order to continue the hybrid program on schedule. The recalcitrant entity is removed from the human body, which is put into deep paralysis while the genetic sample, scarcely to be missed by the human, is taken.

ZetaTalk: Technological Call

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

Many call for assistance with technological advances, such as free-energy-machines. At this time we are restrained from simply giving mankind a gift, by the rules set by the Council of Worlds. Mankind, as scientists or researchers, can however give The Call for assistance on technological progress, and it is possible that this call will be answered. How are these calls sorted out, and what determines whether a call such as this is to be answered or not? Many things.

The true intention of the human giving The Call is the first and foremost determinant. As we are Service- to-Others Zetas, we consider The Call in this light. Has the caller a true desire to help others, or is The Call weighed primarily in the direction of profit and fame. If the caller is truly in the Service-to-Others orientation, we look to the result of fulfilling the request. Will the technological device be used by others, stolen or coerced, so that it will become a device for profit and fame rather than the intended result? If the situation has what we would deem adequate safeguards, we would proceed to the next determination. It should be pointed out that there are scarcely any situations that meet the previous test. If this test is met, we then consider whether the human giving The Call has the personal capability to bring his request to fruit. In the main, there is far more desire than capacity.

The caller must be able to understand our instructions, our explanations. This requirement again narrows down the possibilities, as perhaps only 1% of the callers who are positioned to assure the technological device will not be misused, and who are truly of the Service-to-Others orientation, qualify.

ZetaTalk: Close Encounter

Note: written Sep 15, 1995

Humans have categorized interactions with aliens as Close Encounters, basing the types on the degree of physical interaction and whether the human reports a resulting injury. In all of these Close Encounters, it is assumed that humans are being done unto by aliens. These are not our categories, as we find no difference in any of these encounters, and we also find the premise wrong as in all cases a human gave The Call. Confusion on this issue is due to the human conscious picking and choosing what it wishes to be aware of. Contactees allow themselves to be labeled abductees when they are fully participating. The label was applied early, and stuck, as any contactee indicating willingness was generally treated by researchers and therapists alike as though they were diseased. Claims that a human was injured as a result of a Close Encounter should be examined as to how the injury came about. The Rule of Non- Interference does not allow aliens to have any contact with a human not desiring this. If a human gives The Call to aliens in the Service-to-Self, and during the ensuing Close Encounter of the 4th or 5th kind submits willingly to the domination of these aliens, the human has given permission for physical injury to occur.

The recent fascination with initiating contact is all to the good, however, as this indicates increasing acceptance of the concept that humans are in charge of contact, which they in fact are. The focus has moved from alien invasion to an invitation extended to aliens. Quite an improvement. Why is there not a category for this type of Close Encounter in Vallee's list? Perhaps this could be called Close Encounters of the 6th kind - invitations.

ZetaTalk: Enlightenment

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

There are a number of supposedly alien entities in disembodied state, who purport to advise humans about spiritual growth which they term enlightenment. This is to mean, generally, gaining knowledge about how things work. However, the information supposedly transmitted, or channeled as the case may be, does not give any information that the recipient can challenge, nor can the advice even be applied in a way that can test the theory, so those who deliver the message are safe from this type of harassment.

What is enlightenment? Do you not become enlightened when you attend school, read a book, browse around on the Internet, or even learn from painful experience? This is enlightenment, as sure as any other. However, these supposedly disembodied entities, disbursing wisdom, are suggesting to mankind that there is wisdom that only they can disburse. First, of course, you must buy the book or attend the master's lecture and the like. In other words, support the individual who is disbursing this enlightenment. We have this to say about these knowledge elites.

- First, there is no information that one Earthling can have that the others do not also have at their disposal. Therefore, there are no special people who are receiving special knowledge.
- Second, any alien group, disembodied or otherwise, which would tell you such a thing is disseminating a falsehood, and this is a hallmark of the Service-to-Self, to be untruthful for whatever agenda they are trying to foist upon mankind.
- Third, in almost all of these instances, there is no disembodied entity, but only posturing humans, attempting to gain an easy living and to be the center of attention in some manner.

ZetaTalk: Scallion's Predictions

Note: written Apr 15, 1997

Michael Gordon Scallion is a gifted visionary, on par with Edgar Cayce in this time. That his visions are not identified as exceptional is due to the maxim that visionaries are not valued in their present day to the extent they are when time has passed. Cayce, Nostradamus, and other great prophets likewise were treated with as much disdain as admiration during their day, and only gained their present stature over time. Mankind tends to treat their prophets like gods, raising them to this stature when the abilities are first recognized and then angrily rejecting them if they are not consistently accurate. Like children forever seeking a parent that will not leave or fail them, they demand perfection, when they themselves are far from perfect.

Scallion, like Cayce, is being guided in his visions as a result of having given The Call and being considered a worthy vehicle to relay messages to mankind. Just as some channeled work reflects genuine input from extraterrestrials, some prophets are likewise getting this input. As with all human interpretations of the input they receive, Scallion colors what he hears with his own judgments and spin.

- All humans have mindsets and preconceptions that color what they hear and choose to pass on to others. There is a game played in human society where all stand in a circle and whisper a statement around the circle, one to another until the statement returns to the originator, who can scarcely recognize it for what it was when it left his lips.
- All humans have a limited ability to comprehend the totality of what they learn. A child hearing an explanation for how an airplane can fly, the air lift under the wings, could scarcely pass this information on to others or would do by inserting misconceptions. The concept grasped is the one relayed, not the concept given.
- All humans reach a saturation point when given a great deal of information all at once. Complex concepts often require many factors to be considered at once, and thus a human hearing all the factors may grasp the end results but not remember all the factors. Thus, when relaying this complex concept to others, they omit crucial factors so that the second party does not form the same end result in their mind.
- All humans, when listening to a prophet, pick and choose what they elect to hear. If the message is distressing, they select only those parts of the message that comfort. Just as the witnesses to an accident often recount vastly different interpretations of what occurred, just so the audience of a prophet retain surprisingly different summations of what was said.

ZetaTalk: Edgar Cayce

Prophets bearing impelling messages are invariably inspired. Their message grips those hearing it because it carries a view humans under their own power could not come by. Unlike false prophets, whose pronouncements fall flat almost as soon as they are made, their words uttered by true prophets have the ring of truth, a thousand facets of reality lining up to support the prophecy as it unfolds. Prophets are remembered or gain notoriety where their track record was astonishing in its accuracy or immense in its impact.

Edgar Cayce, due to his accuracy on small personal matters and the resultant widespread notoriety, is living in memory still for his predictions on geological changes. His visions were most certainly inspired by a group of extraterrestrials entities, unknown and unnamed by humans, who operate disincarnate at a high level within the Service-to-Other orientation. Cayce was thus instrumental in alerting many about the coming changes, the tentacles of his prophetic reach spreading into many cultures and lands. He was selected from among the many who give The Call asking for such prophetic assists, not only because of his nature, which was greatly devoted to the general welfare, but also because of his natural gifts. Immensely telepathic for a human, and allowing himself to be in tune with all aspects of the humans he healed and in touch with all disincarnate entities willing to assist with the healing, he wasted not himself or his helpers in any of his endeavors. His gift of healing and his highly accurate intuition spread his fame, which in turn bolstered the widespread belief in his prophecies.

For those lucky enough to be entranced by his words, his message has not been lost.

ZetaTalk: Prophecy

Note: written Jun 15, 1999

Prophecy occurs because a human has given The Call, as their desire to relay important messages is strong, and in addition they are considered a vehicle that is true, where the message given to them will not be distorted or diminished. Therefore it's very rare that the quality of the individual is such that are charismatic, they are important enough that they are taken seriously, and they are a true vehicle that can communicate with a visitor from another world. The visitors are not from another time, but are from another world, from a distance. How then does it happen that future events are predicted? Is this not by looking into the future?

As far as the millennium is concerned, the these prophecies point to around the year 2000, or very close to the year 2000. That your world will undergo extreme cataclysms, and that these happen periodically, is no mystery and is quite predictable. The 12th Planet is a traveling planet that comes through your solar system approximately every 3,657 years. It is as predictable as a train on a track, moving at a certain mph, perhaps dealing with a head wind or a tailwind. It is therefore possible to predict when it will come through, and where you earth will be, how violent the passage will be, and the effect of this passage on earth. You have had this message relayed to you various times, such as in the Bible where the rivers will run blood, and Armageddon, or by various seers who report cataclysmic visions.

The sense that many have of a pending WW III, something that those reading Nostradamus have interpreted, and that has been relayed by a number of people, is a result of predicting who people will respond to the stress of starvation, reacting to floods and droughts, and being opportunistic when they see their neighbors weakened. Such wars are not destined to occur, and mankind can take steps to prevent them.

ZetaTalk: Simultaneous Call

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

Can there be conflicting calls, situations where there is a conflict in calls given simultaneously, in the same human drama? This can and does happen! An example. Friends are sitting around the same living room. One is feeling insecure, and is given to desire more power over others. The insecure one gives The Call, and a response comes from the ambassadors from the Service-to-Self orientation. They may remove this insecure one from the living room for a conference. They may freeze the others in the room, to allow time for this conference to occur. Now the insecure one has returned, emboldened.

Meanwhile, in conflict, a friend in the room is concerned about the insecure one. This friend gives The Call to ambassadors from the Service-to-Others orientation. They, simultaneously, come to confer with the concerned friend. These conferences may in fact occur at the same time. It could happen that while the insecure one was conferring with the Service-to-Self alien entities, the concerned friend was off also conferring with the Service-to-Others alien entities. All others in the living room, as spectators, are frozen in place, awaiting the return of the others.

Now, returned from their conferences, the insecure one and the concerned friend are returned, while the others in the living room are awake. All are not consciously aware that anything at all has happened. They in all likelihood will think that nothing at all has occurred, and that no time at all has passed from the instant before these conferences. Such is the nature of alien entity interactions with humans. The frozen state, and the conscious forgetfulness, are utterly common.

The insecure one, emboldened, makes his power move, perhaps with new insight into what will intimidate those he wishes to have under his control. The concerned friend, also having conferred, will counter these moves with insight, perhaps bolstering the insecure one in unexpected ways so that the game plan given by the Service-to-Self crowd does not come into play, as not needed or relied upon. These dramas have come into play in the past, are happening today, and will unfold in the future. Even when humans have evolved spiritually into 4th Density, there will be such dramas, as there will be spiritual entities of higher density to advise one, when given The Call.

ZetaTalk: Collective Call

Regarding the larger social arena, to what might be termed the communal or collective call. How is this arranged? How does this work? Humans familiar with the Constitution expect their voice to at least carry a vote, and their vote to carry forward to another vote, that of a representative. In this way the human feels they have had input. This issue of the collective call is unclear to humans. However, this works in a way easily understood. Votes are taken, the vote of each individual having an equal weight. These vote totals are then factored into equations, set by the Council of Worlds. For instance, at the present time, as the Earth is to become a home for the Service-to-Others oriented, due to their greater prevalence, a collective call from humans so inclined is given greater significance.

Would a mass call on an issue be given more attention? In the first place, there is no such thing. Where votes can be collected in this manner, each individual gives the Call based on their own concerns, and even if in verbal and conscious agreement, on this or that day, at this or that hour, to put forth a Call with great intensity, these Calls would differ. Thus, we are back to treating the individuals. And in like manner, The Call results in action only through individual humans. Since the Call is for a conference, as we as aliens can only consult, the best that could be done would be to inform, and encourage, a concerned human to take action themselves. This is what we expect, during the Chemtrails/Contrails drama, that disgusted humans will leak information to the press, will create accidents whereby this information is revealed, etc. In all cases, action is by humans, not aliens as parents coming to the rescue. You are in charge of the world, your Earth, and you must take action to make a difference!

ZetaTalk: Leadership Call

Note: written Oct 15, 1995

Is The Call handled in a different manner when it comes from a high level government official, a leader such as a president or premier? Under ordinary circumstances The Call is treated much the same without regard to the caller's position, as those responding are concerned with influencing the calling entity to choose the orientation of those called. Whether The Call comes from a toddler being raised in the slums or an adult running an international corporation, in both cases the focus is the same - the soul of the caller. However, where the human giving The Call is in a leadership position, The Call gets more attention, for obvious reasons.

Many humans assumed to be in a leadership position are not, in actuality, leading anyone. They may have authority such as the right to grant or deny requests, or may have a voice such as the right to critique, or may direct activities such as a construction or production schedule, but they do not influence the orientation decision of their fellow humans which is the key lesson of 3rd Density. Leaders who get a lot of attention are those who influence issues such as law making where subjugation or freedom may result, or war where great numbers of humans will be obliged or coerced into committing atrocities to one another, or new trends and solutions where innovative ways to assist one another may emerge or be stifled. Such leaders get the Mega Call response, where more resources are mustered. The leader, however, is as unaware, consciously, of having been assisted as all other callers.

ZetaTalk: MJ12 Call

Note: written Nov 15, 1995

No alien/human activity occurs without humans first giving The Call, but in the case of military involvement with aliens this can be confusing. If a general gives The Call and enters into an arrangement with aliens, can he command others to go along? In fact both rule systems are in place simultaneously, and here's how it works. Members of the military who are initiated into MJ12 follow a plethora of rules and regulations just as any military intelligence unit does. They also, on occasion, come in contact with aliens. During these interchanges the rules in place go beyond those in place during the usual alien/human contact where the human can allow physical contact or disallow this, delimiting the interchange. MJ12 agreements with aliens of either orientation have always included the caveat that aliens can not physically affect the humans assigned to MJ12 duty, even if the human wishes for this, or gives permission, or even demands this.

ZetaTalk: Zeta Call

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

Humans in the Service-to-Others struggle with the many societal and ecological problems the Earth presents today, and whether or not they give us The Call, we wish them well in their endeavors, as they are not without risk nor easily completed. They are of our heart. We share their grief. We feel their pain. For those who give us The Call, we will be with them no matter the outcome. They will not be deserted during setbacks. These efforts are long term, and not simple in solution. They point to the world that may be. They can call as need be, as they are our allies in difficult struggles. They have but to ask, and we will confer with them and assist where we can. The Earth, being the home to Homo Sapiens, is in the hands of Homo Sapiens at the present time. It is through such people that the Earth is salvaged for the future. Humans and humans only can affect the Earth's future at this time.

ZetaTalk: Pole Shift Calls

Note: written during the Jan 11, 2003 Live ZetaTalk IRC Session.

Contactees give the Call for many reasons, most often not related to the pending shift or current Earth changes. If the issue of the pole shift does not come up in the context of the Call, it is not discussed. Contactees to ourselves, the Service-to-Other Zetas, are concerned with helping others in their family, their neighborhood, the world at large such as how to decrease pollution. The Call is answered in this context, but if the contactee, for instance, is concerned with pollution increases, the Bush Administrations endless allowance of this in the face of what is presumably Global Warming gone wild, the shift comes up. Why would it not? The real reason for the Bush Administrations casual handling of pollution is their knowledge of the shift, and the only way to explain their behavior is to explain what is coming. If the contactee has given the Call because they are in agony over a sick child, their future, the range of options on how they can help this child goes beyond nutrition and medical options, as early death may in any case be the outcome! This is explained to the parents, who are in agony about how to proceed, such that they can determine how to make the child's last days more joyful, a growth experience, a time of love, not pain in the hospital. Thus, there are many opportunities where the shift comes into a discussion even if the base reason for the Call was not related.

However, increasingly, the Call is given by those sensing something very wrong, seeing their neighbors being laid off by an economy gone sour world wide, where the establishment only want to increasingly harbor and shelter the rich, turning their back on the poor and starving. They see Earth changes affecting the local farmers, with no mention of this in the news! They see odd behavior in animals and insects, the weather going so odd as to make the next year utterly unpredictable, yet the news carries anything but these changes as a focus, as though they did not exist. So their question is, being a Service-to-Other Call, how can they help their neighbors, the local farmers, and what to do about the course of society that so many depend upon when it seems to be a ship without a captain? This leads of course to discussion of the shift, as an explanation not only of what has happened but also as an explanation of what to do, in future, to help others. Thus, it is the exception where a Call does not involve discussion of the pending shift, but it is not a routine part of a Call to inform the contactee about the shift. The Call is given by a contactee for his or her reasons, and any agenda the visitors responding to the Call might have is incidental.

For those visitors in the Service-to-Self responding to a Call to them, for selfish reasons, it is unlikely the shift would come up for discussion, as the Service-to-Self like to have the maximum amount of hopelessness and shock occur, as this increases the leaning toward the Service-to-Self orientation, thinking about the self rather than others. Deception, the double-cross, anger and a sense of abandonment, are all tools they use to increase their harvest. This is one reason so many in the establishment are so sure there will not be a shift, so sure they were safe digging into bunkers that would become underground tombs, so sure they could get away to Mars, etc. They have been given the wrong message, the wrong information, and are arrogantly sure they are in contact with the most powerful and prestigious aliens, unlike the silly tree hugging Green Movement contactees, or those trying to help children in the slums. Watch the faces of those in the establishment who are arrogantly sure they will come out on top, when they realize they have been lied to! True karma, during their lifetime, for these individuals who were thinking not of those they had sworn to protect, but of themselves!

ZetaTalk: Awareness

Note: written during the Feb 15, 2003 Live ZetaTalk IRC Session.

Those humans who have pre-knowledge of the coming events, the pole shift and its effect on the world, the Aftertime and how it will unfold, have varying reactions to holding this information, and various reactions as to what to do with it. Not all these humans are contactees, as many simply tap into recent events, read history, study geology, and note the erratic and irrational behavior of the major governments of the world.

- Most telling are the lack of addressing the weather, its effects on the economy and insurance industry and ability to conduct business, increasingly affected. This is simply never addressed as a cause, despite the fact that all countries and all populations are discussing among themselves, on the street, the state of the weather.
- Those along the coastline, or having any family or friends there, or business dealings there, are aware of higher tides, the effect of melting poles and glaciers, islands going under the waves, are alarming. Is this being addressed by the most powerful country in the world, the US, which declares itself exempt from any Global Warming treaties, stating polluting will continue by the largest polluter.
- The Stock Market, clearly a focus of those who put a Republican into office, even by voter fraud when needed, has been plunging. Attempts to put Social Security funds into the market, robbing the poor to support the rich, did not occur as the Market started plunging early. Attempts recently to put money into the market by exempting dividends from taxes is unlikely to come to the rescue. So in the face of a faltering market, the Bush Administration is insistent on war with Iraq, an odd behavior for a President supposedly snug with the rich.

Thus, the common man, watching this comedy of errors, knows that something is up. They increasingly give the Call, and get a proper answer. Then discussions start at the coffee house, the bar, the family table, with an interpretation that most would not come up with on their own, and a larger group now is watching the skies. Why the skies? Who pointed to the skies in the first place? Who implied that Earth changes were about to occur, from the core of the Earth. Star Wars has been pushed outside of any rationale, with a kind of desperation. Disbursing the troops around the world, mustering all in the reserves, and pouring money into the military as though an emergency were right at hand. This is an emergency that is self wrought, by the Bush Administration, as no new attacks have occurred since 911. Thus, this reaction is suspect, the skies as a source of danger, ala Near Earth Orbit asteroids fretted about in the news as though they were a new threat. Movies suddenly taking a different turn, over the past decade or so, with volcanoes spewing up in the middle of cities, asteroids plummeting toward Earth, and the world covered by water for an unexplained reason.

Thus, increasing knowledge of coming Earth changes, somehow involving the skies, from space, is spreading, and no credit to ZetaTalk or other sources of this truth as the elite have done this to themselves. Now, what do those with a firm sense of what is coming do with this information? Primarily, they attempt to find someone who will talk this through with them. This usually results in a hard rejection, and depending upon the nature of the human and the culture they live in, they will either hold this to themselves, waiting their opportunity to find a willing ear, or keep searching. If they are determined to find others whom they can talk to, they will explore their social environment until they find others who will at least listen. Almost invariably, the human will inform their family and close friends of their sense, their worry, and take opportunities to point out when circumstances around them or in the news prove them right.

The degree to which they do this is dependent upon the human, whether they are confrontational or comfortable with being considered an outsider, or fearful. The more bold among them, often the very young or those without much to lose as they are just starting out in life, may make public assertions. And there are the warriors among them, who virtually impale themselves in the battle, risking all to make a statement they feel is important and pressing. At the present time, those who spoke out are feeling a bit more comfortable, as world events are proving them not wrong, but courageous. Thus, increasingly, those who fell to the back, into the shadows, saying nothing, are coming forward, finding their voice. This trend will continue as the Earth changes become severe, the governments of the world making slips in their announcements. Many find courage in a crowd, saying alike, and this eventually becomes an open discussion, with those who would debunk going into hiding, falling silent.

ZetaTalk: Aftertime Calls

The 100 years after the pole shift are a time of transition for planet Earth, in that it is not wholly divided into Service-to-Other or Service-to-Self groups separated by the rules that govern 4th Density spiritual groups. Yet there will be pockets, whole countries or continents even, which are operating in this spiritual orientation, and quarantined from interaction with others in 4th Density of the other orientation. As we have stated in the Rules section of Zetataalk, visitors to Earth operating in the Service-to-Other orientation, or the Service-to-Self orientation, are required to enter into an Engagement in order to interact with each other. These Engagements are overseen by the Council of Worlds, and proceed within rules such that chaos does not reign. Unless an Engagement exists, the orientations do not interact.

However, in 3rd Density, in the main composed of undecided entities not fully leaning toward either orientation, all interact without Engagements. The Call, which is a type of Engagement between an undecided entity in 3rd Density and a visitor, is also controlled by rules, such that the visitor cannot simply have their way with the immature entity. Service-to-Self visitors are thus not allowed to invade, occupy, eat, or otherwise have their way with humans who give the Call to them. The Call is a conference, solely. In the situation we have described, where Service-to-Other communities of humans form after the shift, and are joined by Hybrids or visitors from many worlds, what rules will apply? This is in fact no more complicated than situations on Earth today, where many Star Children are incarnated with developed spirits form 4th Density or higher, yet are living among humans in human society.

- If a Star Child gives the Call, which happens even in higher densities, this is covered by the Rules of Engagement among visitors, as a visitor is what they are.
- If a human in a group gives the Call to Service-to-Self visitors, yet others in the group are giving the Call simultaneously to visitors in the Service-to-Other, then great care is taken to ensure that the Service-to-Self and Service-to-Other visitors responding to the Call of these individual human are not using the humans for a type of Engagement between themselves. Suffice to say that if visitors are not careful about these matters, they are promptly removed from the vicinity, expelled, so care is taken and humans are not used as a type of hand-length Engagement.
- In the Service-to-Other communities of the future, after the shift, where Hybrids and visitors from other worlds and humans of good heart are all living together, in the main this will be uncomplicated. A human in this setting gives the Call to the Service-to-Other, and a neighbor steps up for a chat!
- If an immature entity is among them, perhaps a child depending upon parents, and gives the Call to the Service-to-Self, then this situation would be treated as mentioned above, with care not to cross boundaries. The child would be taken outside of the community, in some manner, for the conference. If this child persisted in his Service-to-Self leanings, he would be encouraged to leave the community when adulthood was approaching. Such situations are not expected to arise, due to the polarization ongoing today.
- It is likewise possible for an Service-to-Other human to find themselves in mixed company after the shift. This is certainly no different than the daily grind of Service-to-Other individuals today, in mixed society.

Thus, increasingly, this sorts out so that human survivors are talking to their nieghbors, not visitors, which is the rule in 4th Density spiritual societies.

ZetaTalk: Hitler

Note: written Jun 15, 1996

Most often those strongly in the Service-to-Self do not announce themselves to the world, but prefer to hide behind a buffer, preferably a shield that can become a scapegoat if necessary. When one is pulling power plays, the battle can get bloody, and the scapegoat is then the one meeting with an accident. When one is going on a personal power trip by torturing others, the victims can escape and return seeking vengeance, and the scapegoat is then the one savaged. If one is operating outside the law, the operation can be discovered, and the scapegoat goes to jail. If one's behavior is scandalizing society's sense of propriety, the scapegoat is left to explain.

Thus, not surprisingly, the most hated Nazi leaders were not necessarily the driving force behind the worst of the Nazi deeds. The gas chambers and experiments on human subjects were not matters ordered or even conceived by Hitler, who was a charismatic speaker but basically a man without much backbone. His rumored suicide was an act this weak man would not have been up to - it was murder, to silence his blubbering mouth. The true perpetrators were in the main secret members of the Nazi elite who met quietly in small groups and were never in the spotlight. If Hitler's guard was running him as a puppet and considered him to be their buffer, then the real driver considered the guard their buffer, and thus to this day history does not blame them.

ZetaTalk: World War II

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

As with affairs of today, interference by alien groups with the progress of World War II occurred only through humans. If a human gave The Call, and requested information or assistance from an alien group, such as the Service-to-Self or Service-to-Other entity groups, this would have been answered then as today. In fact, throughout human history the same rules have essentially been in place regarding contact with humans. The Call was given to both groups, but a stronger call was given to the Service-to-Self groups by, primarily, members of the Nazis and their allies.

They wished for power and tools of destruction. They wished to learn how humans could be put to death so that death was not quick or painless or without anxiety for loved ones. The humans who gave The Call to the Service-to-Self entity groups were concerned with how to produce the strongest sense of helplessness in humans, so as to produce, in the future, the strongest harvest for those in the Service-to-Self orientation. We need not detail what the Nazis did, under Himmler and his aids, along these lines. Humans were not only systematically starved, and beaten, knowing all the while they were headed for the gas chambers, but they were given possible outs. They could turn on their friends and family, on strangers poignantly in need. They could brutalize each other to spare themselves a little bit. As with cattle mutilations today, and the implicit treatment of humans, violations were done to humans who were then allowed to live and contemplate these violations, their horror. Violated humans were returned to the masses awaiting an end to their torment, so that these anxious souls would see what the Nazis could do to one of them.

All this treatment, calculated means to destroy the will of the soul so that it becomes resigned to being dominated by others, was by design. Senior members of the Service-to-Self orientation were in attendance to assist those humans who gave The Call to them.

ZetaTalk: Satanic Rituals

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

---

Invoking the dark forces through magical incantations has been part of man's history from the start, for as long as entities incarnated into human form have been giving The Call to the Service-to-Self. The desire for revenge, to eliminate a rival, to steal from another, to increase personal power at the expense of others - all these desires are such a call.

The magical incantation or rituals such as pentagrams on the floor have nothing to do with The Call being given or answered, but practices that set the mood do. For instance, sacrifice or blood letting, particularly of an innocent or someone the participants are reluctant to sacrifice due to personal bonds, sets the mood. During such acts, the participants increasingly disconnect their empathy toward another, and concentrate on the self-satisfying goals that led them to the ritual. Are babies sacrificed, and by their mothers? Yes, but not as often as the public has been led to believe. Most often the human sacrificed is a peripheral member of the group, so that the cult leader can go on a power trip. He glorifies in his ability to make friends turn on one another, at his command. Such power trips become such a drug that more and more such rituals are performed and the outcome goes one of two ways.

1. Most often the band goes into greater and greater depths of degradation. Sexual acts, perverse in the extreme. Self humiliation of members, who may be required to eat each other's feces. Each convening of the cult requires a step further, so that the leader can experience another high. Matters seldom plateau. Eventually, matters become so extreme that the situation comes under public notice. Small children are disappearing, animal parts discovered, people breaking down and crying for no reason. Everyone gets nervous, and members of the band just bolt. Clothes in the suitcase, gas up the car and go. Separation brings a return to normalcy. The cult members find themselves wandering into churches, and grasping at some explanation outside of themselves - they were possessed, they were under the influence of others, surely it wasn't them. Destabilized, the band often breaks up entirely, and may or may not reform later, perhaps with others or elsewhere. The leader is most likely to restart, but in a new location, where things aren't so hot.
2. The second scenario occurs when the band has a lot of reluctance. At first the Satanic Rituals were a sport. Let's see what happens. When matters take their course they result in arguments, and the arguments increase as the leader's demands on the group increase. Capped in this way, things fritter out.

Do Satanic Rituals result in demons appearing and humans striking a deal with the Devil? This is a parody on what in fact happens as it is not so cut and dried. The Service-to-Self entities answering The Call may appear to the band, but briefly. These demons may take any form, as they are above 3rd Density and thus can move between densities, appearing and disappearing at will. They may show themselves as they are or enhance their appearance to strike fear into the horrified humans and demand and get the subservience that all Service-to-Self entities seek, without abatement. The humans are indeed giving their souls away as they are joining the Service-to-Self orientation, where control and captivity are an everyday reality. Can the demons invoked deliver? No. All actions on Earth are due to humans, so rewards can only come from humans. As we are talking here of the Service-to-Self crowd, beneficence toward others is not likely. Moreover, the Service-to-Self are not known for truthfulness, and would lie in any manner to induce humans to follow a path that would benefit the entity answering The Call. Does the human want a shiny new car. He shall have it. Just kill the child. Of course, the car never arrives, but the human has often delivered his end of the bargain.

Satanic Ritual is a one way street. Humans go to hell, and get nothing for it.

ZetaTalk: Origin of AIDS

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

---

AIDS is both a natural and unnatural occurrence. It has occurred naturally within the simian races for centuries. It has outcropped among humans in Africa and the south seas periodically, but due to limited population spread, simply devastated those groups it invaded. Where there is no written record and no survivors, there was no trace. AIDS was unknown to the civilized world, and would not have been discovered were it not for intervention by those of the Service-to-Self orientation.

What should be understood is that nothing can be accomplished, alien to human, unless this is done through humans. The Service-to-Self aliens, as we, the Service-to-Others Zetas, must find humans in sync with their goals and orientation. The Service-to-Self aliens involved in the spread of AIDS had to work through humans. They found these humans within your United States government, in the CIA. The goal, for these humans, was somewhat different than for the aliens. They considered it, shall we say, a win-win situation, benefiting both groups.

It has been assumed that AIDS was initially spread through a vaccination program. This is incorrect. It was spread through diet, by blood improperly cooked. It was spread through the dietary norms of the initial groups infected. Once having taken place, fastening on a group of humans, the infection could be directed. Sexual habits in Africa and the south seas is highly promiscuous. Sexual liaisons can be arranged. Men hungry for sex, a long way from home, are eager and not inclined to question a gift.

There were plans to sculpt the worlds populations with other diseases too. However, AIDS began to sculpt in ways not expected. The rich, the influential, those close to home. Argument erupted in the CIA camps where the wand of death was held. This is essentially, as we understand it, a closed issue at this point in time. It is for this reason that we can relay this information to you. Were this not a closed issue, we would be forced to silence by the Rules of Engagement.

ZetaTalk: Spreading AIDS

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

In the beginning the AIDS virus was much the same as it is today, infecting humans. This virus has a great propensity for adaptation, so over any period of time changes form somewhat. The intervention by aliens of the Service-to-Self orientation was one of knowledge, directing the individuals interested in such a tool to the simian creatures harboring this virus, and directing the individuals further in the manner of isolating this virus. Sophisticated isolation was not required. The virus was in the blood, and blood is a natural component of the diet of those initially infected. Infected simian blood was mixed with blood naturally occurring in the diet. This was done surreptitiously. This was a mass assault on the immune system of the ingestor. The virus took hold. Use of this means of infection was no more difficult than the initial spreading methods. Eating bloody meat, poorly cooked, and promiscuous sex were practices occurring intensively. One just, shall we say, went with the flow.

The men in the CIA who gave The Call to our counterparts were of the Service-to-Self orientation to a high degree. Had they not been of this orientation they would not have been approached by the aliens who answered their call. These aliens do not squander their time idly. Their objective in assisting these men was the misery they could spread. Agony, a sense of abandonment, rage and the desire for vengeance, all these emotions work to bring recruits to their orientation. This was the object of the aliens assisting in the spreading of the AIDS virus. The goals of the men who made The Call were many. We will mention some, but it would be impossible in this medium to list them all. In addition, as most of the goals were personal, they are insignificant. The men who made The Call were offered a bribe. They were assured that they could possess the continent of Africa, which is rich in natural resources and human cultures easily dominated. In fact, any humans possessing this continent could expect to be enslaved, so the joke, as you say, would be on the men from the CIA. The aliens they were working with are not known for clarifying their goals.

ZetaTalk: Targeted Continent

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

It is no secret that an alien race has desire for the African continent. This is not the only continent in this category. South America is also in the target sights. We cannot address fully the name and nature of the aliens desiring to conquer the continents of Africa and South America, as we are bound by the Rules of Engagement. Nor can we give an answer on time frame, as the time frame is subject to the free will of the humans on the Earth. This is not a settled issue, no more than all the other issues subject to the free will of humans. There is more than one alien race involved. Just as with humans, all entities incarnating in an alien race are not of the same orientation. We, unfortunately, have Zeta Reticulans who are of the Service-to-Self orientation. These are small in number compared to the bulk in the Service-to-Others orientation, but, as you say, one bad apple can spoil the lot, and this is acutely so when the bad apple is one of the initial ambassadors to a planet scheduled for its Awakening. We got bad public relations from such an incident, and strive to recover from this.

We cannot clarify the issue without engaging those in the Service-to-Self. We can, however, give general information on the goals of the Service-to-Self orientation. Domination is high on the list. One can dominate and not be present. The Earth is scheduled to be a home for those of the Service-to-Others orientation, after the Transformation. This transformation period is already in process, and the time frame cannot be answered impeccably. It depends. As this issue of what will happen to the Earth is not a settled issue, Service-to-Self aliens came forward to attempt a coup. They attempted to set in motion occurrences that would benefit them in a large way. War so benefits them. Class or race conflicts so benefit them. This is as much as we can say on this issue.

ZetaTalk: Ebola Virus

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

As with dissemination of the AIDS virus, the Ebola virus was a matter done by the Service-to-Self crowd in the past, a matter now at rest, which we therefore can discuss per the Rules of Engagement. The Ebola virus was one of many gleaned from the bowels of the African jungles. Lest some think something sinister about Africa, this same destructiveness could be gleaned from many jungles, or even deserts for that matter. It is not the continent or its inhabitants, it is the use they have been put to - the evil use. As we discussed under the AIDS topic, Africa and South America are targeted continents. Aliens in the Service-to-Self orientation, along with human converts in the CIA, extracted the AIDS virus and other viruses for use in what they termed cleansing of the continent. The land, rich in resources, was then to be theirs, and any human inhabitants having natural immunity to the viruses unleashed would be their docile servants. Africa and South America have long histories of such abuse, being colonized for centuries in such a manner.

The Ebola virus did not catch on as did the AIDS virus, and the reason was simple. It tended to kill its handlers! When cast out among the swine, as was the phrase used to describe dissemination, the swine would die, but those casting their evil seed could not run fast enough. They carried it home with them, and they died in secreted hospital rooms, infecting their frantic nurses and doctors. After a time or two, they gave up on the Ebola virus, which refused to be tamed. The original plan of dissemination was to be by airborne means. This never came about as the early tests ran amuck. The Ebola virus is not fragile, dying quickly when exposed to oxygen or sunlight. If encased in water droplets, it lives. Thus it could be easily dispersed over a broad area. This stage of the plan was never enacted, nor were the several steps prior to this stage. Key questions to be answered were how long a given infectious period would last, how far the infection would spread on the ground, and how well it could be contained. As it ran like wildfire amongst its handlers, these questions were answered. The decision was made to void the plans.

Why then does it flare up, now and then? It is indigenous in Africa, but the spate of recent flare-ups are because it is now also widely dispersed. No longer lying in the swamps, infecting lizards and snakes which have little contact with humans as they are not the food of choice. Now resident in other hosts, such as rats and cockroaches, which mingle freely among humans. Why did Ebola not spread in this manner earlier? It did, but in an area not frequented by humans. Its original home was swamps, the last place humans live in when they are given a choice. Water logged, full of snakes and lizards, crawling with bugs, humid and unable to grow crops. The virus spread in its normal method, but as the insects and rodents indigenous to these swamps were not adapted to others biospheres, the virus stayed in the swamps. This virus not only refused to be tamed, it also is now running free. Too late to put the cork back in the bottle. Africa is having her revenge on those who would own her. She has made herself undesirable. She has placed poison in her loins.

The Ebola virus is spread in a manner not understood by virologists. They assume it is a new virus, but it has been around almost as long a man himself in his current bioengineered form. This virus was one the genetic engineers of the past were aware of, and this is precisely why members of the Service- to-Self crowd, in cahoots with members of the CIA, were able to locate it so quickly. It was at hand. This virus is most virulent in fecal matter, not the blood or blood serums, and is not at all spread through the breath. Of course, if one handled blood or blood serums with open cuts on their hands, infection would occur. However, it is the horticultural practices in Zaire that have contributed to the outbreaks, and it is these same practices worldwide that those hoping to spread the virus were counting on. The Ebola virus lives quite well in dead tissue, and this is one reason it kills its victims so quickly, turning their internal organs into mush. Were this not the case, it would never have been such a survivor. A virus that kills its victims in days or hours and then itself dies would be unlikely to survive.

Defecation is the primary route of spread, as in Africa the diet is fibrous and defecation occurs several times a day.

Even a quickly dying victim, one dying within hours, is likely to defecate at least once. In Africa, as in most primitive countries, sewage is not treated but rather is left to stand or used as fertilizer or swept into a river to hopefully float away and become someone else's problem. Not infrequently, sewage is used to fertilize, not so much in Africa as in other countries where the soil has been depleted. In Africa, where the heat reduces fecal matter to soil within hours, it is left to stand where it was placed. Ignored, but not by insects, who are adapted to host on all manner of material, however disgusting this may be to humans. Each fresh meal is thus consumed and the insects move on - to be eaten by other insects or small rodents such as rats. And these carriers defecate in areas where their defecation can be included in human food, in food preparation areas. In Africa, hygiene is the least of anyone's worries. This is a bitterly poor continent, and the constant wars distract the populace.

Those wishing to stop the spread should lecture on keeping food preparation areas clean, and ensuring that hospital toilet routines are treated with utmost cleanliness. Wear gloves when handling the bed pan and cleaning the patient. Unlike AIDS, which must have live blood cells in order to survive for long, the Ebola virus is not picky about its host.

ZetaTalk: Human Condition

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

The human condition, on Earth at this time, is deliberately one of confusion. We will examine several situations that may help to clarify the issues at play.

- First, humans desire security. The human condition is insecure. From birth, or particularly at birth, the human is acutely aware of its insecure position. Nude, tiny, unable to navigate, utterly dependent on others. The human infant wants to dominate those it is dependent upon. It is natural for the human to want to dominate its environment. The human wants to control the climate, the seasons. Homes are structured to provide summer warmth year round. Food is grown or at least provided as though harvest season were year round. Storms have no effect, nor do catastrophes have effect. There is social security, the umbrella of government aid. Floods and hurricanes are but another reason to open the government coffers. All this is evidence that the human wants to dominate its environment.
- Second, the desire to dominate goes outside of inanimate factors. The human wants to dominate the other humans in its vicinity. Starting with the infant's desire to dominate its mother, all her attention, and on to the stage of public opinion, the human desires to be the focus of attention. The infant wants its cry to bring immediate attention. The adult want its comments to bring rapt attention from others in the conversation group. No difference. Those who can command attention will get their needs met - so goes the logic. The infant displaced by a younger sibling is insecure, as it is no longer the focus of attention.
- Third, love comes into play. Love, or empathy, is something felt at an early age. Empathy is not an emotion reserved for the intelligent, sentient being alone. Love and empathy are felt by all forms of life, even plant life, to some degree. It is a factor of life. It is intrinsic to life. Love and empathy pull the human into a conflict situation with its desire for security, to be the center of attention. Decisions are made to share the spotlight, to share resources. These decisions vary greatly, among humans. Some humans consider others on the same plane as the self. Other humans rarely, if ever, consider others, and never on the same plane as the self.

ZetaTalk: Upper Hand

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

Among humans, the issue of being overpowered and losing control is not simple. This is because of your state, as you reside among humans on all levels of spiritual development and inclination. The extremes are present, from the sadist who looks for opportunities to torture others, mentally or physically, for the sense of power that this brings him - to the saint who would share a blanket in a snowstorm with another, equally. Has the saint been overpowered by the need of another? What of lovers, who desire the physical union such that they describe the merging in passion as drowning in love? Is this not being overpowered? What of the mother of a young child, who seeing the child in danger would without thought put herself in its place. Is not this mother overpowered by her desire to protect? Should someone decide to rush to help others, putting themselves in front of the flood, and thus being overpowered, feel themselves wronged?

This has no easy answer. In the 4th Density Service-to-Others, this has an easy answer. One can be overpowered by circumstances, but not by other entities. When one is overpowered by circumstances, it is as with weather or storm or accident. Service-to-Other entities do not desire to overpower each other. We desire to see each have the freedom to decide their own outcome, their own path. We support personal decisions, utterly. The personal decisions of the entities in the Service-to-Others orientation are not such that other entities are harmed. Only the entity itself is affected. Thus they have freedom.

However, in your human condition, where you are surrounded by other humans of all levels of spiritual development and orientation, it is possible to be overpowered not by circumstances, and not by a choice of your own, but by another's desire to dominate for their own personal sense of security or desire for power. This is another matter, much dramatized in the movies and in your literature. How to recognize when the line has been crossed? Is the infant's cry domination? You decide not. Is the child's dance in the center of the gathering domination? You view this with affection. Is the wife's demand for time away from family and work concerns domination? You consider this sexual and emotional need, and take it as a compliment, a form of desire.

When do human demands become domination, and when does human response to demand cease to be concern, but submission? A difficult call. To shield yourself from domination, it would be wrong to block all empathetic response. The child cries without respite, as the parent will not be dominated. You see our point. Likewise, the overgrown child who cries for attention, demanding a front place for attention when others are likewise hurting, can be treated as the child this person is, or can be brushed aside. Which is the path of greater spiritual growth? And is this domination?

In sum, this question cannot be answered for the human condition, where you are asked to sort out the various demands on yourself, according to the proper priorities. Each situation differs. The line between being empathetic to the insecurity and immaturity of others, and being dominated, is not easily deciphered. Those more spiritually adept can judge, and know when giving to others is toward a good purpose or toward serving an unquenchable self focus. Sometimes mistakes are made. This is how we learn. One may be used. One regrets. One may fail to respond to a demand in retrospect is reasonable, even poignant. One regrets. In the end, one grows, spiritually and in wisdom.

ZetaTalk: Cornered Victim

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

---

What humans call a participation, even a desire, on the part of a given victim, is misunderstood. Who truly wants to be a victim? What has been described as participation is in fact a capitulation. The unfortunate human, finding themselves in the position of being, once again, in a trap, hurries the ending. This is to reduce their pain, not cause it. Where does the victim not feel trapped? Humans often have little freedom in their life choices, due to societal restrictions.

Can one truly escape? The spouse leaving a marriage rids him or her self of the conflict, but takes on regret and loneliness, and almost always derogation from others. The employee leaving a job after harassment finds they cannot secure another, and co-workers learn of this. Are they thereafter more or less free to chose to leave their employer, when receiving the same harassment. The child, under abuse from enraged parents lashing out at a target that cannot protect itself, can run away from home, but senses, even with its limited knowledge of the outside world, that they will present such a target for others, too.

ZetaTalk: Spirit Guides

Note: written Apr 15, 1996

Spirit guides act as monitors, and become involved in certain types of calls, but not all. Spirit guides are never those who firmly determine their orientation as Service-to-Self. The reason is obvious, as they would scarcely concern themselves with others. Thus spirit guides are in essence entities in the Service-to-Others who are active as administrators on spiritual matters. One could equate an incarnated entity's interaction with a spirit guide to a student in an independent study class, where the youngsters make their study selection and then proceed independently, to read or run experiments or whatever the choice entails. This equates to life.

- At times, the young student gets stymied, is unsure how to proceed, and calls upon one of the teacher's aids or volunteers who come to the school to assist, for help. This call may be unspoken, as when the young student breaks down and cries or throws their work upon the floor in frustration, but nevertheless, is recognized as a call. This equates to The Call.
- Perhaps it is time for the young student's work to be evaluated, a critique for possible promotion. The teacher then talks to the child, perhaps in conference with the child's parents, and an administrative decision is made. This equates to a spirit guide conferring on an entity's readiness to move to a higher density.
- Perhaps there have been serious behavior problems where the young student is stealing the work of other students or being a bully. The school principal is brought in to determine if the young bully needs to be put into a special class for disruptive students. This equates to a spirit guide conferring on an entity's orientation decision to be Service-to-Self and the need for placement with those of like orientation.
- If the student is new to the town, and is being interviewed and their records reviewed for proper placement within the school system, a school counselor would be involved. This equates to spirit guides, the ones we call birthing envoys, determining the lessons to be learned during the next incarnation and the best setting for this lesson.

Humans often assign a parental role to their spirit guides. As the spirit guides help determine the site and circumstances of their next incarnation, their next school term, it is natural for humans to expect the spirit guides to act as human parents do - ensuring that they are clothed and fed, safe from danger, and rescued if in a spot. Spirit guides do not do these functions. As we have stated, incarnations are a self teaching experience, and 3rd Density is a density in which new entities with emerging inclinations to be either Service-to-Self or Service-to-Other mix freely. Spirit guides are not spirit overseers, spirit parents, spirit policemen, spirit nurses, or spirit governors. The guides are available for The Call, but beyond that do not interfere.

ZetaTalk: Antichrist

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

The Antichrist represents the last minute struggle for the souls of men by those in the Service-to-Self. As calamities increase due to the disruption of weather caused by the giant comet drawing nigh for its appointed passage, and as fear and anxiety increase as the Millennium itself approaches, the opportunities for those in stable positions of power in the Service-to-Self camps to secure recruits increases. They have always planned to hover about the Earth at this time, so as to answer The Call in the strongest manner possible, to leverage every opportunity to the max, as you say. Is there a single individual who will incarnate at this time and lead, as some have speculated? No. As we have explained, unless this occurs due to a walk-in or possession, Service-to-Self entities from other worlds cannot incarnate into human form at this time. Only those in the Service-to-Others can do so, as this is the overweening orientation of the Earth and also the Earth's future.

The Antichrist concept, being vague, has taken shape in the minds of those who hear this prophecy as either a single charismatic leader, a group following such a leader, or property and people who carry an ownership mark - the mark of the beast. None of these are true, as the battle is on an individual basis, within each individual human encouraged to follow the Service-to-Self path. The Antichrist represents, by parable, what is occurring now and has been for some years - the battle for men's souls during the end time - the time going into the cataclysms - and the years in the Aftertime, all of which is the Transformation period. This time is now.

ZetaTalk: World War III

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

There has been much speculation about a possible World War III because of phrases in the Bible and interpretations of some of Nostradamus' quatrains. Let us restate that outside of plans in the hearts and minds of humans now living, there is nothing that will affect the future of the Earth or the affairs of man. The future is not written as yet. The potential for a nuclear holocaust is with you today, and even with the promising disarmament steps being taken, and even in the event of total disarmament among all the super powers, this threat would still exist as it takes but a single fanatic with the intelligence and resources to compile an atom bomb to create this scenario. The reader should not slack off in their efforts to promote world peace, feeling that all may be naught due to prophecies. The future is written only in the hearts and minds of those now living. It is up to you.

ZetaTalk: Devil

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

---

The Devil is reputed to be a red creature with a pointed tail and two horns, most often carrying a three pronged fork. Is this a mythological creature, or does it have a basis in reality, and if so, how did it come to be associated with evil? In fact, the Devil is not far in description from a real creature, who lives and breaths today, albeit not on Earth. This creature visited Earth in the past, and, to say the least, made an impression. Why the three pronged fork, and does the number 3 have a significance? It does indeed.

The Devil of lore is a fairly accurate picture of an extraterrestrial who visited Earth millennia ago, briefly. This visit preceded the time when the Bible was to be written, and thus the memories of this entity were fresh and strong. This was a 4th Density entity, who came alone except for his entourage, in answer to The Call from a group of humans strongly oriented toward Service-to-Self. This call was given in mid Africa, but once called this entity roamed about a bit, answering The Call from others in the vicinity. He is indeed red, all over, and to humans in close contact he would seem to exude heat. Thus he was associated with the concept of fire, as one who could live comfortably within fire. His personality, to those in contact with him, seemed fiery also, given to flashes of temper and severe punishments - the Devil.

This entity came to Earth with an entourage, a threesome, who carried pointed sticks used for communications. They stood at attention, to the rear or side of their master, as the Service-to-Self orientation requires a strict pecking order. Their sticks were all in a row, pointed upward. Humans saw this as a threat, as weapons that could be pointed toward them or used to prod them. Thus the 3 pronged pointed fork.

ZetaTalk: 10 Commandments

Note: written by Jul 15, 1995

Moses was a man gifted with an ability to look beyond trials and travails and to focus on the big picture. His time was a post cataclysm time, so many stories about Moses relate to events that occurred during and after the last pole shift. The parting of the Red Sea was not due to anything more than heaving of the Red Sea bed and the normal heaping of waters attracted to the pull of the passing comet. Just as water drops have surface tension, so do these water heaps, and Moses waded through where he perceived there were shallows, leading the way. He scarcely had a choice. Certain death, in the form of the Egyptian army, was at his heels.

Why did Moses lead his people to wander in the wilderness for 40 years. Well, they were just doing what everyone does after a cataclysm - wander. Life isn't good anywhere, so everyone is on the move, hoping. Velikovsky is an author who correctly understood the relationship between the story of the Exodus and the last pole shift. The gloom, the waxy carbohydrate condensate that melted in water to form what looked like milk - the land of milk and honey. Moses felt his people, the Jews, must be special, protected in some way, because they survived. He was not altogether mistaken, as he gave The Call almost continuously, while wandering around in the gloom worrying about how to feed his people, and as one genuinely in the Service-to-Other orientation, he was assisted. This situation should not be construed to mean that the Jews are in any way special or assisted, today. One hesitates to give up any such title or perception, even if it has become but an illusion.

Did Moses descend from the mountain top with the 10 Commandments carved in stone, having spoken to a burning bush? Yes and no. Moses often climbed mountain tops, which in the desert are more like hills, and did so to get the view. When he relayed that he spoke with an entity in the bushes, which he could not make out but which was of such bright light that he could scarcely look at it, how did this translate over time? The bush was so bright ... folks who had never seen an entity in light form could only assume a fire. And did Moses descend with the 10 Commandments written in stone? This was the last thing Moses would have been inclined to do, as he was not a control freak or given to hauling stone tablets around on top of all his other burdens. This story was cooked up later, and attributed to Moses, who was no longer around to refute it. Unlike Jesus, who spoke to the masses in many places and repeated his messages, Moses had few followers. The lie grew larger than the truth, as there were few to speak the truth.

The 10 Commandments show the hand of entities strongly in the Service-to-Self orientation, who answered The Call of humans wishing to tightly control others under the guise of religious edicts. Thou shalt not ... thou shalt not ... thou shalt not - where does it say love another as thy self? Where does it say to practice the Golden Rule, to do unto others as you would have them do unto you? The 10 Commandments are almost entirely fear and rule based, leaving little leeway for one to follow one's heart. Had the 10 Commandments not been packaged as the handiwork of Moses and God's angels, with the necessity of keeping up appearances, the word love would not have made the list at all.

ZetaTalk: Gods of Eden

Note: written Oct 15, 1995

The premise stated in the book, The Gods of Eden, is essentially correct in that it points to the hand of alien entities influencing human history. However, the mechanism has not been correctly presented, as the author, like most humans, gave too much power to alien entities and almost none to the humans in fact at the helm. The process is that humans give The Call, and thus may receive advice and counsel from alien entities, but it is by human hands and human hands alone that human history is affected. The author also stresses almost exclusively the results of humans having called those in the Service-to-Self. Just as many examples could have been given where benefit to mankind in the form of technological assistance or philosophy or insights into problems plaguing mankind came about as a result of The Call to those in the Service-to-Others, but none were listed.

Were aliens called at key times in mankind's history, and did they have an affect? Absolutely, just as they are being called and having an affect today. Where the author traces certain symbols and names of individuals or secret societies, the redundancy of these symbols or names is more often the result of common occurrence, not linkage. The word brotherhood, for instance, is as common a word as the word family, or friendship. The Swastika as a symbol is common because it represents the wheel that primitive cultures used to harness beasts of burden to when creating a primitive torque. This symbol is as common as the circle or fork. Once used, names and symbols pass forward, as languages and verbal history do, from person to person, old to young. Is it a conspiracy that all cultures today use the wheel, comb their hair, brush their teeth, and sleep on beds?

ZetaTalk: Visit from Kladen

Note: written Oct 15, 1996

Among the many true visitations recalled by the contactee and told to others was one that occurred in the 1970's in Canada, and the contactee has been an activist ever since. He had given The Call due to an intense desire to make a name for himself in the field of science, and thus the call was taken by those in the Service-to-Self. Where the contactee planned to use his visitors to further his ends, they likewise intended to use their contactee to further their ends, and they succeeded.

Weaving just enough truth into what they told him to perpetually spur him on, they told him about the coming passage of the 12th Planet in graphic detail. Then they lied and told him he could escape the cataclysms by joining them on the safe side of the Sun, on the Earth's twin, where they do indeed reside. Such an escape is not possible for those inclined toward Service-to-Self, but broadcasting such a message succeeds in focusing human energies in the wrong direction and increasing a sense of hopelessness when the cataclysms are upon them and the humans find they are not to be rescued. Like Tesla, the contactee has been energetically trying to build what he was assured could be his escape ship. Where he has not and will not succeed, he has succeeded in building a following.
